HUGE FEDERAL BUDGET IS CUT BY PRESIDENT

$550,000,000 LOPPED OFF BY HOOVER CABINET

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—Summoning his cabinet for its first extraordinary meeting, President Hoover today slashed the huge federal budget to an extent that he believes will reduce appropriations by $550,000,000.

After the chief executive had taken this special action to clear the way for foreign debt consideration early next week, a formal statement was issued that at the cabinet meeting "reductions in appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1 were settled at about $760,000,000."

"This will, however," the White House explained, "be offset by certain increases in uncontrollable items such as interest and amortization on the public debt and tax refunds to the extent of about $150,000,000. . . .

"The administration is determined to present a balanced budget."

War Debts Considered

The increase in fixed charges, it was explained, could be attributed to the government investments in the Reconstruction Finance corporation and federal land banks of about $1,000,000,000, which, it was added, will "ultimately return to the treasury."

As the cabinet officers left the executive offices one by one this morning, few would speak in detailed figures. In the statement, coming several hours after their departure, it was said that such figures are "never given out until the president's budget message is communicated to the congress."

Meanwhile from Capitol Hill came reiterated expressions of an adamant attitude against the recreation of the war debts commission and against an extension of the moratorium. Should this view prevail, a demand by the United States for payments due on Dec. 15 would be the only course available.

Both Mr. Hoover and President-Elect Roosevelt, when they sit down together over the debt problem at the White House next Tuesday, will have as a common ground an expressed belief against cancellation of the war obligations.

From high administration quarters has come word that the chief executive is definitely opposed to another one-year moratorium, and favors instead a more rigid attitude toward foreign debtors than any wholesale suspension of the payments due on Dec. 15.

How far Mr. Hoover will go in his discussion with Mr. Roosevelt of the requests of Great Britain, France and Belgium for renewed debt negotiations, neither he nor his aides have disclosed. Nor has any intimation been given of how big a part disarmament will play in the conversation.

The cabinet session this morning was the second in two days devoted principally to slashing the budget down closer to the level of federal income. The federal deficit already has passed $700,000,000 and is still rising.

Secretary Wilbur reported afterward he had suggested to the president methods of reducing the interior department's estimates by $5,500,000, but other cabinet officers said their promised reductions should be announced by the president.

Mills told newspapermen after the meeting he already had informed Chairman Byrns of the house appropriations committee that the administration would "submit estimates you will find it hard to reduce."

Byrns meanwhile told reporters on Capitol Hill that he had requested the treasury to give him an estimate on the probable deficit for this fiscal year but had been informed none was available at this time.

He wanted the figures, he said, as a basis in considering the appro-

Convicted Slayer Gets Death Verdict

Columbus, Nov. 19 (AP)—John (Red) Downing was convicted late today of first degree murder, without mercy, for the slaying of his benefactress, Mrs. Mauree Bonzo, wife of the parole and record clerk at Ohio state penitentiary. The verdict makes death in the electric chair mandatory.

Downing, a former convict, killed a woman in Cincinnati some years ago. At that time he was sentenced to a life term after throwing himself on the mercy of the court. The sentence was commuted, and upon his release he was befriended by the Bonzos who gave him odd jobs about their home.

On October 25, Downing went to the Bonzo home and slew Mrs. Bonzo by beating her over the head with a bottle. He pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity, but doctors testified he was sane.

HONOR WRIGHTS AT KITTY HAWK

Monument Dedicated to First Motor-Driven Plane Flight

Kitty Hawk, N. C., Nov. 19 (AP)—State and national dignitaries, standing on the spot where Orville and Wilbur Wright flew the world's first motor-driven airplane, faced a southwest gale here today to dedicate a monument to that achievement. The monument is a 90-foot granite pylon, with a beacon at its peak.

The gale once grew so strong the ceremonies had to be halted for half an hour.

Coast guard planes, army and navy airships and other planes droned overhead as visible demonstration of the result of the Wrights' pioneering experiments, but the giant dirigible Akron was not able to come because of the weather.

Arrangements had been made to handle 20,000 persons, but heavy rains throughout the night and most of the morning cut the attendance to a bare thousand, and hundreds of these sat in automobiles far from the speakers stand as the storm raged.

Orville Wright Present

Hardly had the exercises been completed when the sun came out, and the weather was clear as honor guests of the occasion gathered at Carolina beach for a luncheon given by the Kill Devil Hill Memorial association.

Orville Wright, surviving brother of the pair which started aviation toward its present advanced place on December 17, 1903, was present.

He renewed acquaintanceships with residents of the Carolina banks who were here when he and his brother first experimented with their box-kite glider and then with their motor-driven plane.

Wright, noted for modesty and a retiring nature, took no part in the ceremonies.

Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, paid tribute to the genius of the Wrights, classing them as among "America's immortal sons," in the principal address of

DEMOCRATS IN SENATE MIGHT TAKE CONTROL

ACTION WOULD HELP WETS IN BATTLE FOR BEER

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—Discussion by Republican independent senators of a move to turn control of the senate over to the Democrats immediately gave added hope today to those who want the coming short session of congress to change the prohibition laws.

The proposal to put the Democrats in power of the short session, without waiting for the new congress to come in, was seriously considered by a group of western Republicans, including some who supported Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, and others who did not.

Such a move would place the Democrats, with their platform calling for immediate submission of a repeal amendment and modification of the Volstead act, in charge of the organization on both sides of Capitol Hill.

Members Gathering

Even before discussion of this proposal was revealed today, however, the possibility of a change in the prohibition laws at this session had overshadowed other issues in statements from members gathering for the opening of congress.

Wet and dry leaders were watching these pronouncements closely for a line on what effect the recent elections would have on the hold-over congress in connection with the prohibition question.

Many of the returning members, including some who have been supporters of the dry laws in the past, have predicted or advocated either legalizing beer or submitting a repeal resolution at the short session.

The prediction that nothing will be done has come from one man only, Senator Borah (R., Idaho), though many of the former dry leaders have not yet returned to have their say.

Pronibition, however, was not behind the move discussed by the independents. Rather, it was the desire to carry out the spirit of the "lame-duck" amendment now awaiting ratification by the states.

The chief purpose of this proposed constitutional change is to give immediate expression to the will of the electorate, instead of waiting four months as under the present system. Those talking now of giving the Democrats immediate control of the senate contended their move would carry out the will of the voters as expressed November 8.

Some Leaders Opposed

Some of the Democratic leaders were not anxious today to assume responsibility for conduct of the

Barber Shop Target Of Exploding Bomb

Detroit, Nov. 19. (AP)—A bomb placed in the doorway of a barber shop in East Warren avenue Saturday morning exploded and damaged the shop and a tailoring establishment nearby. No one was injured, although a shower of glass fell upon several children. The proprietor of the barber shop who had been operating at cut prices said he had received numerous threatening letters during the last six weeks.

Colonel Robins Taken To Hospital Suffering From Loss of Memory

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 19 (AP)—Col. Raymond Robins, aggressive dry leader and social worker, was brought to an Asheville hospital today from Whittier, the mountain village sixty miles distant, where for two and a half months he had been living as Raymond Rogers, a prospector while a nationwide search for him was carried on by relatives, friends and many government agencies.

Still apparently suffering from a partial loss of memory, to which his dropping from sight on September 3 was ascribed by John Dreier, of New York, his nephew, Col. Robins was placed in Norburn hospital under the care of a physician immediately upon arriving here, and access to his bedside was denied all unauthorized persons.

Under Doctor's Care

Mrs. Robins arrived here late in the day. She said she recognized him but that he did not know her.

The prohibition crusader and friend of President Hoover was wearing a two months beard and an overall jumper suit, the only garb he was known to wear during his stay in Whittier, when he sprang lightly from a motor car and entered the hospital after a two-hour ride on wet mountain highways.

"Col. Raymond Robins is at present at Norburn hospital in Asheville, and under the care of Dr. Mark A. Griffin of Asheville," a statement by Dreier said.

"The doctor has given orders that no one be allowed to see or speak with Coy. Robins, but that he is to be kept quiet and free from disturbances of all sorts."

Federal prohibition agents who came here with Robins said he expressed sorrow at leaving Whittier, a town of 500 persons in Swain county, where he had lived as "Raymond Rogers" in a $4 a week boarding house.

"I hate to go and have the best peace I have known in ten years torn up," one of them reported he said.

They said Col. Robins seemed to have no memory of his past before his arrival in Whittier as a bus passenger shortly after he dropped from sight in New York while, presumably, preparing to go to Washington for a conference with President Hoover.

Upon reaching the hospital here, he insisted that M. A. White, one of the accompanying prohibition officers, go in with him. White agreed and sat by his bed long after the patient had been assigned to his room.

Col. Robins spent last night in his plainly furnished room in the McHan hostelry at Whittier, with two federal officer standing guard to bar the curious.

Excellent Spirits

He had been positively identified by Dreier, who had gone to Whittier after being informed prohibition headquarters in Washington had been notified there was reason to believe the "Raymond Rogers" of the village was the missing philanthropist and social worker.

Dreier recognized his uncle, but the latter, in turn, failed to show any signs of knowing his nephew.

Arising about 5:30 this morning, Col. Robins had an early breakfast in the McHan dining room. He sat with a group of highway workers, ate heartily, and appeared in excellent spirits.

Whittier residents were divided in their opinion of who first connected the stranger "Rogers," known to them as a retiring prospector whose principal public activity was the delivery of a number of political speeches in support of President Hoover and the prohibition cause, with the wealthy Col. Robins.

Some of the residents said the stranger's identity was suspected within two days of his arrival here, while the newspapers of the land were still carrying lengthy accounts of the disappearance and the futile search, and publishing the various theories to explain it. These included kidnaping by bootleggers or Russian imperialists, supposed enemies of Robins because of his support of prohibition and his advocacy of Soviet recognition.

Most of them, however, were inclined to give the credit to a red-headed boy of thirteen. Carl Fisher, member of a Sunday school class which was taken on hikes by the McHan boarder, claimed to have noted a resemblance in their hike leader to newspaper pictures of Col. Robins and notified prohibition authorities at Washington.

Upon the receipt of the "tip" agents were sent to Whittier, with the resultant confirmation of Carl's Belief.

ALLEGED YOUNG SLAYER CAUGHT

Ignatius Varecha Held For Attacking Chicago Girl, Also

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP)—Ignatius Varecha, 17-year-old alleged desperado who was the object for three days of one of the city's most intensive manhunts as a suspected killer, was captured late today as he watched a performance in a cheap burlesque theater.

Varecha, a fugitive from the state epileptic colony at Dixon and possessor of a long police record, was identified through bertillon records, although he at first gave a false name.

The youth was sought as the slayer of Frank Jordan, 38, last Wednesday night who later held up Miss Lillian Henry, niece of Deputy Police Commissioner John Alcock, and her escort, John Guisinger. The holdup man trussed Guisinger, tossed him from his car and assaulted Miss Henry whom he held prisoner for several hours.

Denies Charges

Alcock rushed from his city hall office to police headquarters immediately upon being informed of the arrest and took charge of the case. Varecha was bundled into a squad car and whisked to Miss Henry's home, but the young woman, still ill and hysterical, was unable positively to identify him, police said.

The youth then was taken back to headquarters to be questioned and to await a "show up" before Guisinger and other recent robbery victims later tonight. Varecha himself denied slaying Jordan or attacking Miss Henry and declared:

"It's a bum rap!"

Varecha had been trailed to the theater by the patron of a nearby barber shop who recognized him and summoned police.

Jordan was slain as he sought to protect his woman companion from a robber as they sat in his automobile at a south side street corner. The highwayman fled after the shooting and a short while later Guisinger and Miss Henry were held up only a few blocks away by a youth whose description fitted Jordan's slayer, and, police said, Varecha.

All Army Reserves In Bolivia Called

La Paz, Bolivia, Nov. 19. (AP)—The government today called to the colors all army reserves trained in the years 1923 to 1929 while the army general staff announced continued success against Paraguayan attacks in the Gran Chaco.

The general staff's statement said the Loa Campos and Aharoa regiments repulsed "six violent attacks" in the Fort Saavedra sector, inflicting severe losses on the enemy.

Fort Saavedra has been in a state of siege for several days. Paraguayans claim advances both north and south of the fort, which is located about 60 miles north of Pilcomayo river. La Paz dispatches confirmed these reports that a salient had been formed there.

Father Shot By Son Following Quarrel

Detroit, Nov. 19 (AP)—William P. Masillia, 54, was shot to death by his son, Marshall, 23, in his home tonight, following a family quarrel.

The younger Masillia told the police that he shot his father in self defense after the latter had chased him upstairs and had attempted to take a pistol from him which he had procured to defend himself.

Witnesses told the police that Masillia, his wife, and Mrs. Nellie Korstange, of Kalamazoo, his sister, were seated about the dinner table when the quarrel started. The younger Masillia was held for investigation but the women were released.

Youth Is Sought For Cruel Murder Of Grandmother

Chicago, Nov. 19. (AP)—A youth of high school age—the son of wealthy parents and a "model student"—was sought tonight for what police termed one of the cruelest murders in Chicago's history.

The youth, 16-year-old Bert Arnold, was wanted for questioning about the killing of his grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Saxe, 60 years old, in the home of his parents.

Mrs. Saxe was beaten to death and her body dropped into a cistern. Elements of mystery suitable for a Scotland Yard "thriller" were contained in the evidence—heel prints of a woman's shoe in blood, fingerprints on two costly candelabra, and a missing automobile.

HEAVY VOTE IN STATE CAUSES GREAT TANGLE

CANDIDATES CLAIM GROSS ERRORS IN TABULATIONS

BY DAVID J. WILKE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Detroit, Nov. 19 (AP)—Out of the heaviest vote ever cast in Michigan coupled with an unprecedented Democratic victory for most offices from president down to county drain commissioner has come one of the worst tangles the state ever has seen with winners and losers alike claiming errors in the tabulation.

The claims of errors are made in demands for recounts filed by a score or more candidates on both Democratic and Republican tickets. Heading the list of the recounts demanded is that for the office of secretary of state, the lone state office, which the Democrats on the face of the unofficial figures, lost to the Republicans.

Other offices involved in recount petitions include one congressional post, a prosecuting attorney's office, a number of jobs as sheriff, state legislative positions and many county offices.

Recounts Demanded

In the contest for secretary of state almost complete unofficial figures gave the victory to the Republican incumbent, Frank D. Fitzgerald, over Burnett J. Abbott, Democrat, of Saginaw, by slightly more than 3,000 votes. This indicated result was challenged by Abbott with a demand for a recount in 298 precincts in several counties. Fitzgerald followed suit and demanded a recheck of the vote cast in 749 precincts.

The secretary of state's office with all the patronage it controls was a bitter loss to the Democratic party which carried most of the other offices throughout the state as well as the remainder of the state ticket. For the Republican party it means continued tenure in numerous appointive jobs throughout the state and the nucleus of a political organization for the campaign two years hence.

The recount in the out-state precincts should be completed by the end of next week. Just what will happen in Wayne county, however, still remains somewhat problematical.

Here the deluge of ballots November 8—nearly 500,000 of them in round numbers—was further complicated by the size of the ballot sheets, some of them being a yard long and nearly as wide, and appears to have literally swamped election inspectors and others charged with tabulating and forwarding a count to the county canvassing board.

Use Makeshift Boxes

So heavy was the voting that in many precincts the regulation ballot boxes were jammed long before the voting was completed and improvised containers were called into use. Most of them were cardboard boxes with the

DEATH BECKONS SENATOR JONES

Noted Prohibitionist of Washington Defeated For Re-Election

Seattle, Nov. 19. (AP)—A career as a spokesman for the state of Washington in national affairs that spanned all but nine of the 43 years of statehood ended here today when death came to Senator Wesley L. Jones, chairman of the senate appropriations committee and Republican whip in that body.

The 69-year old senator died in a private sanitarium where he had gone for a rest after the rigors of the recent campaign. He had been defeated for re-election by Homer T. Bone, Tacoma Democrat.

His friends said he died of "exhaustion." Physicians attributed death to a strain upon his heart from a kidney ailment. The widow, an only son, Harry B. Jones, Seattle attorney; a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Coffin; four grandchildren; a half brother, W. P. Guthrie, Yakima attorney, and a sister, Mrs. Ray Coleman of Decatur, Ill., survive.

Funeral services will be held here Monday afternoon.

Jones was best known nationally as a dry advocate and author of the "five and ten" prohibition enforcement law, but associates said although his name was attached to it, the measure was drawn up by the department of justice. He was also known for the merchant marine acts of 1926 and 1928.

Governor Roland A. Hartley, Republican, is expected to name a successor to serve until March 4.

Wysocki Will Take Case To High Court

Detroit, Nov. 19. (AP)—Counsel for Alex Wysocki, sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of his wife in a fake holdup, announced Saturday an appeal would be taken to the state supreme court. The announcement followed denial by Recorder's Judge John A. Boyne of a petition for a new trial.

VICTORY GIVES KIPKE'S TEAM BIG TEN TITLE

PLACE KICK SCORED BY NEWMAN IN FIRST HALF

BY ROY F. HENDRICKSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 19 (AP)—It was fourth down, four yards to go for goal, with 36 seconds remaining in the first half today, when Harry Newman, Michigan quarterback, decided to stake his team's chances for an undisputed Big Ten title on his right foot.

He booted a high place kick, it narrowly missed an upright, but soared safely over to provide the margin of a 3 to 0 victory over Minnesota, giving the Wolverines the title and a claim on the mythical national football championship. Purdue, undefeated in the Western conference, is forced into second place because of a tie with Northwestern earlier in the season.

Eight Victories

A Minnesota fumble shortly before had paved the way for Newman's opportunity to keep unblemished Michigan's record of eight victories and no defeats or ties this season. The Gophers, fighting the desperate battle of underdogs, matched defensive energies in every period, led in the number of first downs, 3 to 2, and had the highest total of gains and stopped Michigan's dangerous passing attack centering about Newman.

For Jack Manders, big Gopher fullback playing his last college game, there was a touch of tragedy in the outcome, the final game of the season for the old rivals.

He was, with Charles Bernard, Michigan center, an outstanding defense player, but it was his fumble near the end of the second period that turned the tide for Michigan before the 30,000 frost-bitten spectators.

Manders caught a low pass from center with the tips of his fingers and as the ball slid out of his grasp, Bernard and Fred Petoskey, Michigan end, recovered it on the Minnesota 23 yard line.

Newman's pass game was stopped at less critical times, but in the next sequence of plays it counted for all of the 18 yards it brought his team during the day. A pass to Fay was good for eight yards. Fay plunged for four more, and Everhardus lost four. Newman then shot a pass down the center of the field to Petoskey, who was hauled down only three yards short of the goal. Fay lost a yard, and as Michigan faced its final down, with four yards to go, Newman dropped back to kick at an angle with Fay holding the ball.

Gopher Threat Ends

After his kick, neither team made its way within 30 yards of the other's goal. Only once did Minnesota threaten seriously. That was in the third period when the Gophers accounted for all their three first downs. Pug Lund, halfback, the day's leading

Boy, 13, Responsible For Locating Robins

(Copyright 1932, By The Associated Press)

New York, Nov. 19. (AP)—The complete account of the events leading to the discovery of Col. Raymond Robins' whereabouts was unfolded tonight by Salomon Levinson, Chicago attorney and intimate friend of the welfare worker.

Precipitator of it all is the letter to Mr. Levinson from a 13-year-old boy in Whittier, N. C., Carl Byrd Fisher, whose belief that a mountain prospector was in reality Robins was the prime key in solving the many months' mystery.

The youth wrote to Mr. Levinson after seeing the attorney's name linked in news dispatches and magazine articles as an associate of Colonel Robins.

This letter was received in Mr. Levinson's Chicago office Monday. He was in New York and his secretary telephoned him of its presence. It was forwarded to New York.

The envelope from young Fisher was addressed "Salomon O. Levinson, Chicago lawyer and peace advocate, Chicago, Ill.," and the letter read as follows:

"Whittier, N. C.
"Nov. 11, 1932.

"Col. Salomon O. Levinson,

"I believe that Col. Raymond Robins is here at Whittier, has been here about seven (7) weeks.

"His picture came out in the newspaper and I have seen him and I think he is your man. He has a good education, and is a world traveler.

"When he came here he was slick shaven and now he has a beard, and wears an overall jacket suit.

"He says he was a personal friend of Teddy Roosevelt, and is a personal friend of Mr. Herbert C. Hoover.

"He gives his name as Mr. R. H. Rogers.

"Please (underlined) send one of your men that know him well or come yourself to Whittier North Carolina.

U. S. Lost $300,000,000 Loaned to Russia for War Purposes in 1917

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—How the United States advanced hundreds of millions of dollars in trying to bolster Kerensky's government and keep Russia in the World war was told today in official dispatches published by the state department.

More than $300,000,000 still stands on the books of the United States treasury as a charge against a Russian government which no longer exists—a charge which may figure prominently in any negotiations which might be conducted looking to recognition of Soviet Russia.

The documents published by the state department supplement two previous volumes on relations with Russia and cover most of the years 1917 and 1918.

Wanted 500 Millions

They throw additional light on the credits given to the provisional government of Kerensky, review efforts to stabilize Russian currency, discuss plans to continued trade after Kerensky was overthrown by the Soviet regime and explain efforts of American railway engineers to rehabilitate Russian railroads.

Secretary of State Lansing cabled Ambassador David R. Francis April 3, 1917, asking him to learn what financial aid the Russian provisional government desired from the United States. Three days later Francis replied that Russia needed $500,000,000, adding:

"Russia owns boundless forests, immeasurable deposits of ores and oils and immense areas of tillable lands. This loan, in my judgment would be absolutely safe. Furthermore it is advisable from every viewpoint of policy."

Subsequent dispatches indicated Russian officials were eager that Great Britain should have no control over any credits the United States advanced to Russia.

ROOSEVELT AT MOTHER'S HOME

President - Elect Rests; Will Visit Hoover On Tuesday

BY WALTER T. BROWN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 19 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt arrived here today for a week-end rest at the home of his mother before next week's momentous war debt discussion with President Hoover and conferences with Democratic congressional leaders.

The president-elect after meeting with Mr. Hoover on Tuesday afternoon will remain in Washington until Wednesday afternoon. It is expected he will talk with Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia, who will become chairman of the foreign relations committee in the next congress, and the other Virginia senator, Carter Glass, one of the senate's financial leaders, as well as others.

After his arrival here from Albany in a heavy rain storm, Mr. Roosevelt said he would, over the week-end, give no consideration to the possible trend of the White House conference.

"The governor intends to do a lot of listening," one of his aides said regarding the Washington meeting.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a message to the president accepting an invitation to the White House, said that he would be glad to "informally" talk over the debt situation but that responsibility for immediate action rested with the present congress and Mr. Hoover.

Prof. Raymond Moley of Columbia university, who will be the president-elect's only advisor at the Hoover meeting, returned to New York today after spending a day at the executive mansion in Albany. He will not see the governor again until he boards the train for Washington.

Leaving Washington Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock, the Roosevelt party, traveling in several special cars, will arrive at Warm Springs, Ga., about 9 o'clock Thursday morning. National Chairman James A. Farley and Mrs. Farley will be in the party.

The governor will remain two weeks at the health foundation which he established, and probably will not return to Albany before the week of Dec. 11, less than three weeks before he steps out as New York's executive.

Mr. Roosevelt will remain at the Hyde Park estate until Monday afternoon when he will motor to New York City. The White House conference is set for 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Overnight guests at Krum Elbow were Viscount and Lady Astor and George Palmer Putnam and Mrs. Putnam, the former Amelia Earhart, the aviatrix. Miss Earhart, introduced by Mrs. Roosevelt, gave a lecture tonight at the Poughkeepsie high school on flying.

Tomorrow the Roosevelts and their guests will attend church at the little ivy covered Hyde Park Episcopal church where several generations of Rooseveits have worshipped.

"Estimates submitted for the treasury and postoffice department supply bill, however," Byrns said, "show that considerable reductions have been made and all of the provisions of the economy act passed last spring have been incorporated in them."

Hearings are being held by his committee on the measure.

Byrns said hehad been advised by Mills that similar reductions in estimates for the remainder of the supply bills had been made. By putting into effect the provisions of the economy act on the supply bills, he said, appropriations of about $150,000,000 under the current year would be achieved.

"In honoring these two pathfinders, we should recognize in their achievement the spirit of America that made their inventions possible," Hurley said.

J. C. B. Ehringhaus, of Elizabeth City, governor-elect of North Carolina, and Congressman Lindsay Warren of the first North Carolina district also spoke, each paying tribute to the Wrights and their achievements.

Miss Ruth Nichols, one of the world's outstanding women fliers, paid a brief tribute and then, standing in the rain before the face of the monument, unveiled the marker, which stands atop of Kill Devil hill, a large sand dune.

Six Persons Killed By Colombia Flood

Bogota, Colombia, Nov. 19 (AP)—Six persons were reported killed or drowned and more than a score injured today when floods followed a terrific rainfall and hailstorm.

More than 50 houses in Bogota were destroyed and hundreds of persons were homeless.

It was feared more deaths would be revealed in excavations of ruins. Traffic was paralyzed in the city for more than an hour and police were unable to answer calls for assistance. Three children were among the persons reported to have lost their lives.

Older Boys' Conference Will Close Here Today

Dick Carlton, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Carlton of Escanaba, was elected president of the Older Boys' Conference for 1933 at yesterday's business session at the Wm. W. Oliver auditorium. Vice presidents for next year will be: Lowell Eklund, Munising; Stephen Mason, Menominee; William Hagan, Kingsford; and Keith Fjetlund, Gladstone.

The conference, which has been highly successful from the standpoint of attendance, interest and enthusiasm, will come to a close today. The boys will attend church services this morning, and will assemble this afternoon at the junior high school auditorium to hear the final message from Dr. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell college, who will speak on the subject of "Youth in the Making of a New World." A special program of singing, under the direction of the well known George Campbell, will also be presented.

Many Attend Banquet

About four hundred and fifty boys attended the annual conference banquet at the junior high school gymnasium last evening. Following the banquet, the group went to the auditorium, where they heard a fine program of Sousa's marches played by the combined Escanaba and Munising high school bands and an address by Dr. H. M. Crooks, president of Alma college.

Honesty, moral righteousness, enthusiasm and loyalty were listed by Dr. Crooks as the traits of character men must possess in order to tackle the task of rebuilding the world. He stated that there is much pessimism in the world today because of the depression, which is a physical, monetary or economic depression, but he added that there is no reason to give up hope as long as we retain the willingness and ability to launch a new moral uplift.

Much of the evils of the present depression he attributed to the fact that men in business became dishonest. He advised the boys to acquire the habit of honesty, starting by conscientious study in their school work and adherence to truthfulness throughout life. One cannot become honest overnight for it takes years to acquire the habit, he said.

Lauding the monogamous marriage as the foundation of the home and family, he declared that the man who is loose in sexual morality is a traitor to civilization, and that he tears down all the good that it has taken ages to build.

Enthusiasm Needed

Of enthusiasm, he said that no one ever successfully carried out an important undertaking without possessing it. "Some things are worth the enthusiasm of a lifetime; and there is still a need for it," he added.

Dr. Crooks called attention to the fact that all the great social reforms have started because someone or some groups had enthusiasm. He told of the temperance movement, which started almost a century ago in Ohio when a number of devout women started holding prayer meetings and eventually brought about Prohibition.

"The temperance people are depressed now because their cause seems to be losing ground," he said. "They should not feel discouraged, however, for this year the people were voting a certain way because of their pocketbooks. I predict that the pendulum again will swing the other way."

He then told of the evils of the old saloon, and declared that the modern day speakeasy does not compare with the barrooms of pre-Prohibition days.

Steiner Speaks

Dr. Crooks urged the practice of loyalty on the part of the boys to their parents, friends, school and community. "Loyalty is a kingly quality of personality," he said.

In closing, he said: "I wonder that if this day of depression, physical and monetary, if the thing that will save us is a moral uplift. If we can reinforce the world with the practice of honesty, add to the stock of enthusiasm, contribute to the supply of purity, and show loyalty to those things that are good and right, we should not be fearful, for the new world that we are to build will be much finer than the world of old."

At yesterday morning's session, Dr. Steiner also gave a highly inspiring address. He told that we are too prone nowadays to judge things by what they cost, their huge bulk, speed or cleverness, while we often miss what is truly important and beautiful in life.

BOY, 13, GETS CREDITED WITH FINDING ROBINS

Mr. Levinson took the letter early Wednesday to the New York office of Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition administrator. Whittier, N. C., was reached on the telephone and through the postmaster, checked the authenticity of the letter writer's address. From this man, it was learned the letter writer was a boy; that he could be reached as soon as school was out.

At mid-afternoon, the boy was reached and the letter verified.

Mr. Levinson, detained in New York on legal conferences, notified relatives of Colonel Robins in Brocklyn and a nephew, John Dreier, was sent to North Carolina to meet someone from the prohibition enforcement office.

The Washington prohibition office was notified and in turn, Prohibition Agent J. Ed Kanipe, of Asheville, was ordered to Whittier to meet the Robins nephew and to find the prospector and make identification if he turned out to be Colonel Robins.

The Chicago attorney was hesitant to make public his part in the clearing up of the mystery and did so, he said, only afer several inaccurate accounts appeared. He said all the credit should go to the boy in Whittier.

Farmers' Income In America Is Slashed

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—The American farmers' gross income for this year is tentatively estimated by the agricultural department at $5,240,000,000—less than half of the 1929 returns.

Farm production in 1931 brought $6,955,000,000; $9,403,000,000 in 1930 and $11,950,000,000 in 1929.

Estimates of expenditures and net incomes for this year have not been made, but the department says that "expenditures have probably been further reduced since farmers have sharply curtailed expenditures, especially for fertilizer, machinery, and repairs for farm buildings and machinery. However, it appears unlikely that these reductions have amounted to as much as the reduction in gross income."

Thomas Is Glad He Is Not Roosevelt

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Norman Thomas, defeated Socialist candidate for president, declared today, on the eve of his forty-eighth birthday, that he would rather be in his own shoes than in President-Elect Roosevelt's.

"First," he explained, "because I'm right.

"Second, because I haven't got the Democratic party on my hands."

He expressed frank disappointment over the vote he received, then added:

"But the situation of the Socialists is better today than I thought it would be. I'm hearing from people throughout the country; they're saying they want to go on; we've only made a beginning."

No Strap Hangers In New Street Cars

Detroit, Nov. 19. (AP)—The strap hangers are going to have their reward on Detroit's street cars beginning Monday but they will have to pay 10 cents for their seats.

Officials of the Detroit street railways announced today that beginning Monday de luxe cars would be operated over some of the city's main routes. These cars will have a comfortable seat for every passenger and when the car is filled the motorman will display a "loaded" sign and no further passengers will be picked up until seats are available.

The fare on the de luxe cars will be 10 cents. The regular street car fare is 6 cents.

$100,000 Damages Sought In Court

Detroit, Nov. 19 (AP)—An echo of the tragic fire at the Study club, Detroit night club, in the fall of 1929, will be heard in circuit court Monday when the $100,000 damage suit of Miss Gladys LaBousa comes up for trial.

Miss LaDousa, one of the survivors of the fire which resulted in the deaths of 23 men and women, seeks damages from Martin Cohn, proprietor of the club; Clarence Brewer, commissioner of recreation; John M. Bischoff, commissioner of buildings and safety engineering, and Harry L. Follers, of the fire marshal's office, for injuries she says she suffered when she was trampled in the panic-stricken rush of guests for exits when the fire broke out.

DEMOCRATS IN SENATE MIGHT TAKE CONTROL

senate under such conditions without an actual working majority of Democratic votes and they planned to discourage the proposal.

Republican leaders were going forward with plans for the session, on the assumption they would retain control. Discussing suggestions for turning the senate over to the Democrats, Senator McNary, assistant Republican leader, said:

"I assume the Republican organization of the senate will not resign its responsibility to the party and the country, and that it will go forward with the program of rehabilitation in harmony with the Democratic house as far as it can. I expect no move of that nature."

Virtually all of the Democratic senators who have returned to Washington have declared their support of the Democratic platform on prohibition, including Senators Harrison, of Mississippi; Ashurst, of Arizona; Byrnes, of South Carolina, and George of Georgia, all supporters of the dry laws in the past.

"If the treasury deficit continues to mount," Harrison said, "I see no reason why beer should not be legalized."

Ashurst asserted it would be "embezzlement of power" for the Democrats to fail to carry out their platform pledges, and George said he would "vote for a sensible definition of an intoxicating beverage."

"The question of modification of the Volstead act will be out of the way by Christmas," Byrnes said.

The Democratic leader, Robinson of Arkansas, also has said he saw "no reason" why the short session should not consider prohibition legislation. Similar statements have come from Democratic leaders of the house, including Speaker Garner.

Returning Republicans also have given added impetus to the drive for changing the liquor laws.

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, said he favored immediate submission of a repeal amendment and liberalization of the Volstead law. From Senator Fess, of Ohio, long a supporter of prohibition laws, came a statement that there was "no real reason" why the question should not be submitted to the people at the coming session, though he predicted modification would be postponed until the new congress.

Borah's lone statement on the other side was that no controversial question can be disposed of in a short session of congress.

Meanwhile, many of those advocating a change in the laws, insist that until it is achieved enforcement funds must be maintained. This view was taken today by Representative Oliver, Alabama Democrat in charge of the appropriation bill carrying funds for prohibition enforcement.

"I am in favor of enforcing the law as long as it stands," Oliver said, "lending particular protection to states which have no prohibition laws. We certainly should appropriate enough money to prevent nullification."

Officers Disclose Counterfeit Plot

Fort Worth, Nov. 19 (AP)—An alleged scheme to dispose of counterfeit currency was described by secret service operatives today at the preliminary examination of four defendants on conspiracy charges.

The defendants—E. S. Allen, Fort Worth attorney; Charley H. Clark, oil lease man; Edward A. Griffith, filling station operator, and C. O. Vernon—pleaded not guilty and were held to await action of the federal grand jury. Their bonds were set at $5,000 each.

The complaint charges the quartet with conspiracy to possess, sell and pass counterfeit $100 notes on the federal reserve bank of Chicago.

Allen was arrested when he appeared as Vernon's attorney.

Delegate To Back Hawaiian Self Rule

Honolulu, Nov. 19 (AP)—Delegate Victor S. K. Houston sailed today to open a fight in congress at Washington for continuation of self rule in Hawaii. He will be joined next month by a commission of territorial leaders soon to be appointed by Governor Lawrence M. Judd to aid him.

Frankly perturbed over a bill introduced by Guinn Williams, chairman of the house territories commitee, placing Hawaii under commission rule, Houston said his most important task during the short session will be opposition to proposed changes in the territorial government.

A bill proposing military rule for Hawaii, introduced by Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois, and a group of measures recommended by the department of justice also are pending.

Benton Harbor, Nov. 19. (AP)—All votes cast for sheriff in the second precinct of the first ward here were ordered thrown out of the recount being made here when an error of 60 votes was discovered. HITLER VISITS GERMAN CHIEF

Nazi Leader Applies to Be Made Chancellor Of Reichstag

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Associated Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, Nov. 19 (AP)—For the second time in three months Adolf Hitler, who was a corporal in the World war, applied today to Field Marshal Paul Von Hindenburg, president of Germany, to be made chancellor of the reich.

This time, in marked contrast to their meeting August 13, Hitler was invited to sit down for an hour and to talk with frank cordiality. As he departed from the president's residence, he was asked to come back for another conference next Tuesday.

Although political commentators said today's meeting in no-wise indicated that the president had changed his mind sufficently about his adversary in the presidential campaign to share with him responsibility for Germany's destiny, still it was agreed that a beginning had been made in achieving a better understanding between the two most popular German leaders.

Considerable work behind the scenes was involved in bringing about the meeting between these two erstwhile bitter antagonists. And political observers see plenty of work ahead in the matter of fitting the national socialist movement into the president's scheme for a government "of national concentration."

Neither Hitler nor Von Hindenburg was willing to discuss their meeting. On reliable authority it was learned that the Nazi leader, apparently chastened by the setback of the Reichstag elections November 6, dropped the attitude that had appeared arrogant to the president in the August 13 meeting.

Instead of demanding the chancellorship Hitler pleaded with the president, according to this reliable source, to permit him to place his movement of 12,000,000 Germans, most of them youthful and enthusiastic, behind the venerable field marshal's unique authority.

In the course of the one-hour conversation the national socialist leader concentrated on four points.

1. That the Nazis are Germany's last bulwark against communism.

2. That the reichswehr (the army) is sacrosanct to the Hitlerites and that everything will be done to promote its efficiency and popularize it among the masses of the people.

3. That the fight against the restrictions of the Versailles treaty will be carried on and intensified.

4. That a cabinet headed by Hitler would consider its cardinal domestic task to be to get the jobless off the streets and into productive work.

Weeks of laborious effort by third parties preceded today's meeting.

First General Kurt Von Schleicher, defense minister, had to be reconciled to Hitler, against whom he felt strongly because in the meeting with the president August 13 the Nazi leader demanded all or nothing.

Next it was necessary to induce Otto Meissner, the president's political adviser, to look more favorably on the Nazi chieftain. Then large industrial groups of western Germany, who were displeased because the Nazis supported the recent traffic strike in Berlin and because they considered Gregor Strasser, one of Hitler's chief lieutenants, to be socialistic, had to be convinced that business need not fear Hitler.

Finally the moment came for men having the president's ear to tell him that the Nazi leader was not the terrible fellow some persons made him out.

HEAVY VOTE IN STATE CAUSES GREAT ANGLE

customary spot in the top, but in several instances waste baskets and garbage cans were used. Some of the candidates seeking recounts in Wayne have challenged the legality of the use of these temporary receptacles.

Probate Judge Henry S. Hulbert, chairman of the county board of canvassers said this was a question for the courts to determine. Aside from this, however, Judge Hulbert said numerous "major errors" had been found in the tabulation submitted by district inspectors to the county board of canvassers. In some instances the votes cast for secretary of state had not been counted at all, in others some of the split ballots were not counted.

Judge Hulbert was completing plans today for a complete recheck of the Wayne county vote. With the numerous errors cited and the fact that the district election inspectors alone may correct the totals entered in their tally sheets, the task is a gigantic one.

Whether it will affect the result of the very close contest between Fitzgerald and Abbott for the office of secretary of state could only be conjectured. In a provisional "official" total of the vote cast in Wayne county for this office Abbott was given 262,787 votes and Fitzgerald 213,027, a majority for the Democratic candidate of 49,760. On the most recent tabulation of practically complete figures throughout the state, including Wayne, Fitzgerald received a total of 760,460 and Abbott, 757,324, a margin for Fitzgerald of 3,136.

The figures are a combination of official returns from a number of counties, and unofficial figures from others. The Wayne county totals, however, are admittedly incorrect. Just how much so is the task before Judge Hulbert in the new count to be made next week.

Incidentally both Fitzgerald and Abbott have asked for a recount in certain Wayne county precincts. Fitzgerald's petition called for a recount of 722 precincts in Wayne while Abbott asked for new figures in 194, in the same county. There are 1,031 precincts in the county.

Among other candidates demanding recounts was former Mayor Charles Bowles, of Detroit, Republican, defeated by John D. Dingell, for representative in congress from the fifteenth district.

William F. Connolly, Democratic leader, said today that Bowles is "just wasting his time" in demanding a count of the ballots. "The Wayne county election commission," he said, "has no right to go into the ballot bores and recount the votes in the congressional race. All Bowles can do is wait until March 4, when Mr. Dingell is sworn in and seat, and then demand a recount on some definite basis, such as fraud or duress."

Bowles filed his petition for a recount with the secretary of state at Lansing Friday.

Chamber of Commerce Preparing 1933 Program

MEMBERS GIVE SUGGESTIONS

Board of Directors to Adopt Program of Work Soon

Many constructive suggestions for the development of Escanaba and the surrounding community along civic, industrial, commercial, agricultural and recreational lines have been submitted to the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce in response to the questionnaire mailed out recently to members of the local organization.

Next Thursday will be the deadline for the receipt of suggestions, following which the board of directors will meet to consider the various proposals offered and will include all those that appear feasible at this time in the 1933 program of work for the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce.

The proposals for the program of work included the following:

INDUSTRIAL

1. Industrial development from within.
2. Help local industries; boost home products.
3. Patronize local canning project which has been started in a small way. This could be developed into an industry that would be far reaching.
4. Encourage local merchants to buy locally manufactured ice cream, butter and other dairy products.

COMMERCIAL

1. Continue to promote Escanaba as a shopping center of Upper Michigan.
2. Buy at home—we have many fine stores, and good merchandise at the right prices.
3. Encourage cooperative marketing.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS

1. Complete paving of streets between Ludington street and First avenue north.
2. Erect permanent street signs on the principal thoroughfares within the city, making provision for the erection of others during later years as conditions warrant.
3. Replace Ludington street lights which are too dim with brighter lights or add overhead lights at intersections. This would add greatly to the appearance and safety of our main business section.
4. Curb Lake Shore Drive on both sides and have property owners pay half.
5. Install street lights between 17th and 23rd streets, US 2-41 on Ludington street.
6. Enforce reckless driving law, especially on Ludington street and Stephenson avenue.
7. Pave 13th street from First avenue south to hospital with concrete. If not paved soon, this should be heavily graveled.
8. Keep alleys between Ludington and First avenue north and First avenue south clean in order to be used as a regular road.

LEGISLATIVE

1. Work to secure adequate tariff on pulp, pulpwood and paper products. On lumber and ore also if present rates are inadequate.

TOURIST

1. Increase and capitalize tourist raffic.
2. Remove tourist wall at straits by working for free ferry service.

HIGHWAYS

1. Form an organization of the cities along US-2 whose ultimate aim would be the paving of US-2 from Ironwood to Sault Ste. Marie.

HARBOR

1. Secure from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation sufficient funds to construct a combined municipal freight and pleasure boat dock and dock yards.
2. Make a determined effort to clean up the harbor. I am reliably informed that one or two yachtsmen visitors this summer have had their boats so covered with an oily or tar residue from the water of our harbor that they have stated they would never make this port again. Inquiry develops that at least some of this residue comes from our city gas plant discharging waste into the harbor and it most certainly should be stopped. With the very great increase in the number of automobiles, more people are turning to power boats for recreation and the business is well worth having, to say nothing of the desirability of having a good word said for our harbor instead of serious criticism.
3. Delta county and Escanaba should have a real airport, not only for land planes but also for seaplanes. Escanaba will soon be one of the central west ocean ports and when that time comes, we should have in addition one of the outstanding airports on the Great Lakes. I wish to call your attention to the south shore with its sand beach, low water and a real chance to put in a breakwater at a low cost, with state and federal aid.
4. I believe the time is here When it would be possible and advisable to develop Escanaba's port facilities. We need water transportation to get lower rates into Escanaba and develop it as a manufacturing and distributing center. It could be done at a very low cost now and would help employment considerably.
5. Petition our congressmen for an appropriation for a new lighthouse on Sand Point, said lighthouse to be equipped with the latest thing in a light and up-to-date fog signals. Present structure standing for past 65 years and is badly dilapidated and far from being modern. Procure an appropriation for a delivery dock in connection with lighthouse for unloading and storing of buoys, supplies, etc., as this will be done by Manistique or Menominee harbors if we do not get busy on this in the very near future.
6. Build a dock on site of old Stephenson dock.
7. Build dock with assistance of unemployed. There are enough rock piles along US 2-41 which could be hauled to Escanaba by city trucks at a very low cost.

CITY BEAUTIFICATION

1. Expand and improve city gardens at disposal plant as needed.
2. Promote ordinance prohibiting planting undesirable species of shade trees on city streets.
3. Remove stumps and provide desirable species of trees for property owners who will cut down weed trees for winter fuel.
4. Consider ordinance against planting shade trees between sidewalks and residences.
5. See that trees are planted in front of all property in Escanaba.
6. See that old sheds in the back of property are taken away to improve our city.
7. Bathing beach should be cleaned and improved.
8. Make Escanaba a more attractive city to live in, and more attractive to tourists by developing a good bathing beach with boating and fishing facilities, by means of a city ordinance prohibiting the planting of inferior trees within the city limits and encourage the planting of good trees, with proper spacing.
9. Build tight board fence in front of the unsightly scrap iron pile at the east end of Ludington street.

AGRICULTURAL

1. Get the farmer a market for his stuff.
2. Promote better dairying.
3. Is there no fruit that is especially adapted to this climate and situation? Berries are, of course, and they might well be planted in larger acreage with a view to canning on a larger scale than at present; but it does seem as though we could raise cherries, apples or some similar fruits commercially.
4. Continue support of garden clubs.
5. Secure central location for city market and have a roof built over same for protection to the people and the farmers' goods.

PUBLIC RECREATION

1. Promote water sports and boating by establishing a community boat house with a boat livery in connection.
2. Consider plan for improvement of Ludington park beach.
3. Continue good work of providing sport and recreation for young men of city.
4. Encourage and help boys in recreational sports.

GENERAL

1. Initiate state legislation which will give counties home rule and permit county manager form of government.
2. Mark the historical spots in Delta county with appropriate markers.
3. Name the county parks for pioneers who have developed the county.
4. More publicity for our splendid hospital facilities.
5. Cater to hay fever patients.
6. Promote the greatest possible spirit of local patriotism, civic pride and loyalty.
7. Promote Escanaba as a convention city.
8. Continue the system now in use by which fraudulent and unnecessary advertising schemes are eliminated.
9. Organize county-wide taxpayers association, whose business it would be to turn the spotlight of publicity on public revenues and expenditures, fight graft and waste, and develop and carry out the county manager plan of county government.
10. See that school board sells property they don't need and add to our tax list.
11. Encourage the people to be more careful in their demands for city service during these lean years.
12. Construct sidewalk between old street railway station at Wells and the North Western ore dock at North Escanaba, using the former right-of-way of the Escanaba Traction company for that purpose.
13. Urge the state to bring the Land Economic Survey to Delta county.
14. Arrange to have permanent window displays in vacant buildings on Ludington street. Perhaps the American Legion, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, U. P. Development Bureau, our Fair Board and many others could be persuaded to trim a window every few months and take away that forlorn look of an empty business place. The window trim the Chamber of Commerce gave the Metropolitan store on Escanaba Day of course furnished this idea and what a help that display was to that building.
15. Help the unemployed to get farm homes.
16. Work toward elimination of the township system.
17. Watch expenditures of governmental bodies.
18. Uniform house numbering.

Man Drops Dead On Ludington St.

Charles Johnson, 74, of 115 North Tenth, dropped dead Saturday morning at 9:45 while he was walking down the sidewalk in the 900 block of Ludington street, near the United Cigar store.

Mr. Johnson was formerly of Mashek, where he operated a farm for many years. He also was identified with logging operations in Maple Ridge township.

The body was taken to the Allo funeral home, where it will lie in state from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. today, and tonight will be shipped to Chicago for burial. A sister, Mrs. M. Donaldson, lives at Bellwood, Ill. Mr. Johnson has a number of old friends in the vicinity who knew him when he lived at Mashek.

Doyle Opposed to Spending More Tax Money to Enforce State Prohibition Statute

Replying to the question put to him yesterday afternoon on his position regarding the enforcement of the state prohibition law since the overwhelming adoption of the so-called repeal measure, W. F. Doyle, senator-elect of the Thirtieth district, expressed his opposition to the expenditure of any more state money for enforcement of the law pending the setting up of the necessary machinery to handle the liquor situation after the Volstead act is amended.

"Why talk about enforcement of a law for three or four months that has not been enforced for the past ten years or more except the occasional gestures made by law enforcing officers under the guise of doing their duty," Doyle said, adding that he was of the belief today just as he has been for many years that it is physically impossible to enforce such a law and attempts at it have merely helped to swell the ever growing public expense that has "burdened the tax paying public far beyond the bounds of reason."

Doesn't Like Hypocrisy

"I may be called a nullificationist," he said, "but I would far rather that than be branded as a hypocrite. Any person who knows anything about the inside workings of these things must admit that raids have been planned spasmodically for the express purpose of making a showing of some kind and not for protecting public safety, public morals or public feeling.

"How perfectly asinine it is," he said, "to think of spending more money on the enforcement of a law that has proved itself incapable of being enforced when there are thousands and thousands of people on the verge of starvation in this state and every taxing body in the state is maintaining that it has no money to feed and clothe destitute people.

"Let the federal government continue to enforce its glorious and noble Eighteenth Amendment but let the state police officers devote their attention to more important matters. I have always been opposed to the use of the state police force in minor liquor matters. We in Michigan never intended that this organization be used in the capacity of stool pigeons or even assistants to them.

Not Afraid of Gangster

"No, I do not believe the gangster and racketeer will dominate the sale of wines and beers after the Volstead law is amended because the racketeer will then be violating a law that has public approval. Today he is violating a law that a big majority of people have been violating themselves and have wanted violated. I do not believe it will be long before the old time respect for the revenue officer, federal marshal and state trooper is returned. Today they are held in disrepute because they have been expected to enforce an unnatural law that never had public sentiment back of it," he stated.

And it should not be forgotten that the demand for a change in the state prohibition law is not a partisan matter. There are Republicans as well as Democrats who want liquor control brought back to common sense administration. I advocated it in my recent campaign and shall use all of my influence in office to get rid of the state law that exists today and help bring about the necessary change in the federal law as well.

"We need not worry about the return of the old time saloon. In the first place, it never left us. The sign was taken down and the name changed to speakeasy. When people are again permitted to use ale or other moderate beverages, they will eliminate the speakeasy themselves," he said.

$300,000,000 LOST BY U.S.

It also was demonstrated very soon that the United States had no enthusiasm about lending $500,000,000, but gave Russia credit of $100,000,000 on May 17, to be used chiefly for the purchase of locomotives and railway cars in this country.

On July 8, 1917, Elihu Root, chief of the mission sent to Russia to devise plans for keeping that country in the war, joined with Ambassador Francis in recommending a loan of $75,000,000 to pay Russian soldiers in Finland and disgruntled sailors in the Finnish waters. This loan was represented as necessary for national security and was immediately granted.

Francis advised on July 22 that $50,000,000 more be advanced and described Kerensky's attitude as "determined and aggressive," saying:

"Kerensky is undoubtedly the most potent influence in Russia now."

State department dispatches to Francis indicated that Secretary McAdoo of the treasury was not inclined to meet Russian demands unsparingly, and a note from Lord Reading, the British ambassador in Washington, on August 3, stated that Russia was asking for supplies far in excess of what her transportation system could handle.

However, another credit for $100,000,000 was granted by McAdoo August 23 to cover rifle contracts and other orders placed in New York.

On November 3 Francis made another appeal for $100,000,000, saying it was necessary to bolster sentiment. He said:

"If the Soviet should control its government would not survive long but would be succeeded by a stronger government which would be more potential in restoring order and prosecuting war."

Then came the Bolshevist victory.

Colonel E. N. House wired Secretary Lansing from Paris November 24:

"In Great Britain and France the Russian situation is considered as hopeless at the moment. There is no responsible government within sight. I should advise making no more advances at present or permitting any further contracts for purchases."

Messages later received by the state department announced decrees by the Soviet government repudiating foreign loans and taking over all property by the Bolshevist government.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Surely, Patrolman Clarence Shearer, of Springdale, thought a policeman's car wouldn't be the object of theft. So he parked it in front of his home for weeks. But one day recently he walked out to find the car missing. Someone had stolen it, wrecked it, and left it a few blocks away from his house.

VICIOUS SNARE IS CONFISCATED

Hunters Find Murderous Device to Trap Deer Near Northland

One of the most vicious types of deer snares ever seen in this locality was found last week by Joe I. Perow of Escanaba as he was going through the woods in the vicinity of Northland.

The trap consisted of a scantling base, on which were attached two hinged arms, folding down in opposite directions. A strong coiled spring about 18 inches long was attached to one of the arms of the trap, and the other moved in unison, with a cable running through a pulley to put it in motion. On the end of each jaw of the trap were two sharpened rods about eight inches apart, designed to strike vital spots in the bowels of the deer as the trigger was released by touching a string stretched across the runway.

The device will be turned over to the conservation department.

TAX LIMITATION

The proposal to limit the tax on property to $15 per $1,000 of assessed valuation has been adopted by the people of Michigan by a majority of about 25,000 votes. The action by the people in the referendum now places a difficult job in the hands of the next legislature, which will have to find new sources of tax revenue and also effect reduction in governmental expenditures.

We are always quite wary of efforts to find new ways of taxing the people, for usually when a new tax is devised it eventually results that politicians got more money to spend on new-fangled ideas in government. But if the limitation measure succeeds in making our public officials earnestly endeavor to reduce governmental costs it will have accomplished a good purpose.

A tax limitation measure was adopted by the legislature of the state of Indiana several months ago, and being anxious to learn how the plan worked out there, The Press wrote a letter to the state board of tax commissioners of that state. In replying to the query, L. S. Bowman, secretary of the Indiana commission, stated:

"The law has resulted in considerable good in the way of providing a motive or an objective to local tax officials in the state to try as nearly as possible to bring the rate down to $1.50 per $100 valuation.

"One of the glaring weaknesses in the law is that the state tax levy was limited to fifteen cents on each $100 valuation of property, which makes it absolutely impossible for the state to finance state goverament and its institutions. This board was disposed to fix a levy in excess of fifteen cents, and which would be large enough to yield a sufficient amount of revenue to provide for the appropriations already in existence for the next fiscal year. However, the attorney general held that the fifteen cent limitation was legal, and therefore that amount was fixed by this board.

"The legislature had already provided special rates totalling 10.5, which left only the balance of 4.5 to be applied by this board, which in the judgment of the board will leave the amount of revenue produced several million dollars short of the amount already appropriated.

"At the time this bill was passed the legislature still intended to provide other means of revenue such as sales tax or an income tax, but all these efforts failed and the session adjourned without remedying this deficit.

"In many taxing districts in the state the rate has been cut to such an extent that local government will be very greatly hampered. In many instances the school year will be reduced from eight months to five or six months and other things in proportion. We feel that the pendulum has swung too far and that at the next regular session this law will be very greatly amended or a new law substituted. We believe that limitation, however, will be retained in some form and that an effort will be made to tap other sources of revenue to help out the tax on property."

It is obvious that the limitation amendment will force the Michigan legislature to make an extensive revamping of the tax system. It is true that the present system places an undue burden upon the owners of property, and it is apparent that some relief must be extended. The revolutionary changes that will be brought about by the limitation measure, however, also are certain to have their defects, which we hope will be less than the failings of the property tax. No system of taxation can ever be perfect.

WHAT HAPPENED?

The way in which the electorate moves to the polls—or, as the case often is, fails to move—seems to be a mystery-shrouded affair which is almost beyond solution.

Approximately 47,000,000 American voters were registered for the past election. An utterly unprecedented outpouring at the polls were expected. But it appears, now, that approximately 10,000,000 of these registered voters forgot to do anything about actually voting. This years total vote, it seems, will prove when finally added up no greater than that of 1928, if indeed it is quite as great.

What happened to those lost 10,000,000? Did they decide that the fight was so one-sided that their votes wouldn't make ay difference? They originally planned to vote, or they wouldn't have taken the trouble of qualifying. What came over them between registration day and election day?

SALES TAX LOOMS

Will Michigan be forced to adopt a sales tax?

Will the federal government be forced to adopt a sales tax?

In view of deficits in both state and national treasuries, depleted income tax and other revenue for the federal government and a huge delinquent tax list confronting the state, a sales tax looms large as a prospect for state or nation, or both. No other state is much better off than Michigan, some of them worse.

Much as a sales tax is abhorred, much as it is to be shunned, there appears to be no other immediate new source of taxation available. Property tax cannot be made to produce increased income when so much property is already on the delinquent list. Income tax cannot be made to produce increased income when incomes are shrinking.

No reduction in the cost of government, state or national, can be made effective to afford material immediate relief. Pressure on local, state and national treasuries is due to relief appropriations, not to the overhead although that can be reduced considerably without crippling functions of government. Relief appropriations cannot be reduced at present. They must be increased.

Sales taxes will produce immediate additional revenue, but the evil lies in their capacity to produce enormous sums in short order. Revenue pours into the public coffers so quickly, easily, and in such huge quantities that the temptation to spend it freely and create new jobs is almost irresistible to politicians, and politicians run our government whether they be Republican or Democrat.

Sales taxes always are called emergency taxes. That is the only condition under which a sales tax has a right to function, but experience has taught us that the "emergency" is stretched out too long. Sales taxes imposed by England on her 13 colonies, culminated in the Boston Tea Party and then in revolution.

If sales taxes must come their introduction should be guarded by statutory limitation for a short period, perhaps three months or six months, not to exceed a year at most. Then they would automatically stop. They would have to be renewed over protests of an indignant public. But if inaugurated subject to withdrawal by legislation, oligarchies and bureaucracies will be built up that will make it impossible to abolish the system for a long time, and then, not till the public is on the point of revolution.

Legislators of states and the nation are beginning to "lean" toward a sales tax. Perhaps it is coming. But if the people warn their representatives by letter, not conversation, that if it must come it must be for a specifically limited time, it will be done. The emergency will be met and end there. That will remove some of the evil of a sales tax.—Menominee Herald Leader.

Governor Roosevelt, say the experts, will have a more important role than President Hoover in the next short session of Congress. Maybe that's the reason photographers caught Hoover smiling.

Campaign "hoola" must have sounded like the familiar long call in the field of politics, judging from the herd of job seekers that's crowding around the trough.

"There's a time and place for everything—even a coonskin coat, considering the temperature in the bleachers at football games these days.

LYRICS OF LIFE

A THOUGHT

To think a thought is not enough
However good and wise,
It must be made of better stuff,
Or futilly it dies.
Whatever heights we may attain
In thought, what distance reach,
These things that waken in the brain
Must blossom into speech.

To speak a thought is never all,
However men admire;
The thought must be a clarion call
To set some heart afire.
It must be fashioned into words,
Great words, brave words, and fine,
Words not to drive a shepherd's herd
But lead a marching line.

'Tis not enough to think a thought,
To speak it not the end;
If mighty matters shall be wrought,
It more most comprehend,
For, marching at the column's head,
Who is the man who leads?
Not he who only thought and said,
But spoke his thoughts in deeds.

Week-end Murder

(By NEA Service)

BY GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The story opens with a prologue in which a murder is committed by a homicidal maniac. Later he boards a train for Long Island, thinking of the pleasant week-end he is to have. The name of the murderer is not disclosed.

The scene shifts to the Long Island home of LINDA and TOM AVERILL, married three years and much in love. The Averills have five guests for the week-end: COUSIN AMOS PEABODY, elderly, distant relative of Linda's; CAPTAIN DE VOS, handsome Belgian representing a European perfume manufacturer with whom Averill hopes to do business; MR. STATLANDER, middlewestern manager of the firm Averill works for; MARVIN PRATT, former suitor of Linda's; and LIAN SHAUGHNESSEY, Irish writer on a lecture tour.

Cousin Amos immediately makes trouble. He quarrels with Shaughnessey because the Irishman holds liberal political views; plays golf with Statlander and infuriates him by criticizing his game; discusses prohibition with DeVos and declares DeVos is "no gentleman." It is finally agreed that Cousin Amos is to leave early the next morning.

The others go to the Country Club dance. Just before leaving Marvin Pratt goes to Cousin Amos' team and they are heard quarreling. The dance is uneventful but when the others are ready to leave Shaughnessey can not be found.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

WHAT could have become of Shaughnessey? Linda frowned. "No, he hasn't been with us," she said. "We thought you had him."

Ella Mondell turned uncertainly and it was at that moment that Tom, looking intently toward the thinning row of cars, shouted: "That must be he! Oh—Shaughnessey!"

A high border of fir trees marked the edge of the club line. At the extreme end a dark figure could barely be seen. The figure turned at the hail, paused a moment, waved a negligent hand and strolled toward them.

"'Twas lost entirely I was! Sure to me every car of the lot looks like another."

"You were going the wrong way for most of them," said Tom dryly. "Hop in—in front, Shaughnessey. We're all here now."

The Irishman muttered something which Linda did not catch. Evidently he was on the verge of being quarrelsome, loquacious or plaintive, according to what circumstances suggested.

At the wheel of her own little car, she waited for the other to lead off. Without giving too apparent assistance, Tom was steadying Shaughnessey's climb into place and, as that broad back was presented to her, Linda saw that it was amazingly dusty and covered with the fine brown needles which the fir trees so liberally shed. Over toward their house, those balsams grew. The path from her back door to the club was thick with them. No cushions had cared that comfort-loving back, if he had chosen the pine grove as a retreat. She wondered more than ever what dainty chiffon or soft, summery crepe had shared his company—or what group of couples. Just then the sedan started with a jerk. Tom was evidently no more pleased than she with the behavior of their guests.

LINDA had chosen Mr. Statlander as her companion partly to help make up for her unfortunate error at the dinner table the night before. His glum silences had proved difficult for her ever since he had arrived but after the discovery of their mutual fondness for dancing perhaps he would be a little more responsive. As the little car started after the larger one Statlander began to shoot at her an astonishing series of questions.

"Your little boy did not come up today to see you, did he, Mrs. Averill?"

"No. The old dog was a great pet of his and we didn't want to tell him about her. It would have been hard, with guests in the house, and he not even staying home so we could lead up gently. Mr. Averill telephoned his mother and asked her to keep Bingo there all day."

"From the presence of some toys in the closet of the room I occupy, I thought perhaps I had turned him out to make room for me."

"Oh, heavens, no! I'm sorry about the toys—Rosie shall move them in the morning. No, Bingo and Nanna sleep across the hall from you."

"That is the room I've heard you speak of as the nursery? It faces the water?"

"Yes. We're not using it this week-end—the ceiling and walls were ruined by water from an overflowing tub upstairs. That's why we had to put Mr. Shaughnessey in the garage."

"Oh, then that is the room which opens on the small white porch over the central front of the house?"

Linda wondered at such persistent interest in the architecture of White Haven.

"Yes."

* * *

"THAT little balcony connects also with a room on the other side? I've observed it from the front lawn."

"One of the guest rooms—yes."

"Where Mr. Peabody is?"

"Yes."

"I presume the servants' quarters are upstairs."

"Yes—over the center of the house."

"You also have rooms in the garage—may I ask—"

The interrogation was abruptly ended by their arrival at the White Haven gate. Linda swept the little car skillfully around the curve in the road and between the posts and drove up so closely behind the other car that she had to brake hard to stop in time.

Again Tom walked to the garage with Shaughnessey. Linda, watching, was relieved to see that he entered and went upstairs. He could hardly put the man to bed but at least he could see that he didn't set the place on fire or do other damage trying to find the lights. The rest of the party went up and dispersed silently. Pratt and De Vos tiptoeing cautiously by Cousin Amos' closed door.

"I told him he could leave it open for the draft through but the idea seemed to shock him," Linda whispered as they reached the little hall. Just then she heard from within a raucous grating sound which confirmed her belief that Cousin Amos had blandly ignored her earlier request. "Perhaps it's just as well—that door on the balcony makes the horridest noise and having this one shut muffles it, at least. You have everything you want? Well—good night. You can all sleep late tomorrow morning!"

WHEN Tom finally succeeded in escaping Shaughnessey's garrulous friendliness and returned, tired and out of sorts, he found Linda sitting by the window toward the Sound. On the bed lay her corn-yellow velvet wrap, on the floor her wisp of a frock, and her high-heeled pumps had been kicked off beside it. She seemed to have lacked energy to proceed further with the business of undressing and when he came in simply rolled her eyes at him eloquently and made no further move. He sank into a chair by another window and for a moment weary silence reigned.

"Did you ever know such a night!" Linda gathered her energies to speak first. "Never—never in all my born days—was I so hot and cross and disgusted. As a house party, this is the biggest washout I've ever had!"

"You're tired, Binks," her husband observed dispassionately. "I think they all had a good time."

"They may have for all we know anything about it—I hardly laid eyes on one of them all evening."

"Well, didn't you plan to turn them over to the female contingent?"

"Yes, of course—and I wanted them to enjoy themselves. And you're still the best dancer in the world, my Thomas."

"Thanks—same to you. Gosh, this heat is appalling! Not a bit cooler at night."

"Morning—getting lighter every minute. That means it'll start in hot and get worse instead of better. Why does Fourth of July always mean such ghastly weather? And on top of it, every darned one of those men had been drinking—"

"Even your beloved Marvin?"

"Now don't you start anything!" Linda suddenly snapped from complete inertia to militant uprightness. "He was too queer all evening—implying he wasn't welcome—nasty way of talking without coming right out with what was on his mind."

"Well, look, Binks—what was the matter with him before we started? When he came downstairs he looked black enough to kill. I sort of hated to drive off with the others and leave you. Then everything seemed all right when we got there so I forgot about it till now. Anybody step on his toes before we left?"

"Hmp! Who specializes in toe-stepping around here?"

"Don't glare at me—he's not my cousin!"

"Oh, Tom, that's cruel! I can't help it. Why is Cousin Amos such a pest? I fished around a bit but I couldn't find out what it was he did or said. Every time I led back to it, Marvin got sulkier. He was that way on and off all evening. I'd rather have all sorts of an explosion—made me feel queer and qualmish, just wondering. You see, I know his temper of old. He holds in too much and when he does let go—well, I wouldn't want to be in the way!"

CHAPTER XI

TOM AVERILL frowned. "Oh, gosh, there we go again talking about the—what did you call them?—'potential murderers'?"

"I wish I never had to see any one of them again," Linda said dejectedly.

"Oh, come, Binks! It isn't as bad as that. A few hours of sleep—"

"A few hours? How you do exaggerate! It's almost daylight and we've got to get Cousin Amos off early. Early for him—that's even worse!"

"How soon? It's after 5 now."

"In about an hour. He gets up about half-past 6 or 7 anyhow and he wants to take a 7-something train. That means 6 today."

Tom whistled silently. Then he began undressing. "Binks," he said, "go to bed. I'll see the old fellow off and tell him you're all in."

"Thanks, but that wouldn't do. It's my job and I'll send him away with a smile. I wouldn't sleep anyhow, Tom. I'd have him on my mind."

"Say—here's an idea! Get out of those things and into your bathing suit. This room's an oven and a cool dip'll do you more good than lying down. If you'll fling on a few clothes and see that he gets breakfast I'll run him to the station and you can go to bed then. I doubt if anyone else shows his face before noon."

She was already scrambling into the pert little red jersey suit that made her look so boyish and slim.

"I'm with you, Tommy! It's a grand idea. Think any of the others—?"

"Leave 'em out. Two's company this time and they're all asleep by now, anyhow. Come on!"

"Wait—I can't find my cap! You go on—it's here somewhere. I'll be right behind you!"

The cap was found and Linda stopped to pick up the soft, crumpled, lacey dress which still lay where she had stepped out of it on the floor. As she smoothed it out and straightened Tom's equally neglected evening clothes she felt the still, oppressive heat of the silent house brooding over her. There was always something thrilling about seeing the sun come up (she thought with a grin that she'd never admit that to the too-instructive Cousin Amos) but this morning the sensation of fresh wonder and delight was lacking. The room had actually grown hotter since Tom left. She sighed. Even getting down to the water seemed almost too much of an effort—then she stopped.

FROM somewhere down the hall came a light creaking tread—the hushed sound of one who walks quietly for fear of disturbing others. It was followed by a slight click and then to her ears came distinctly the wrak-wrak-wrak of Cousin Amos' defiantly opened casement giving on the little porch. She relaxed. Evidently her cousin was already about, wakened by the light and the still, heavy heat. Also evidently he did not want to disturb any of them and Linda decided to pretend she had not heard. After all, it wasn't quite 6 yet—half an hour before he should show signs of life. She would have her plunge and cool off before facing the next step. Yes, everything was quiet now. No one would hear her patter along in her little red rubber shoes.

But in the hall, she relented. Cousin Amos hadn't had much pleasure from his stay and he had so enjoyed the water yesterday! Since no one else was coming, why not at least ask him? At his room door she stopped in surprise—it was about a foot ajar. She remembered that he had not left it open during the night. Then she thought of the step she had heard in the hall. Curious he should go outside his room so early! He had his own lavatory and could have done without a tub for once in his life. If he had gone across the hall she hoped fervently he hadn't either met or disturbed Marvin or DeVos, both tired, sleepy and hot and therefore edgy after the Country Club affair. They were safely in bed by now and, she hoped, deaf to Cousin Amos' cautious, if inexplicable, rambling in the hall.

But, she wondered, had he gone back to bed or was he actually up and dressed so early? Hesitating whether to knock or not, she unintentionally pushed the door a little more widely open and could not help seeing the bed—empty, rumpled, the covers thrown back. Feeling very apologetic, she opened her lips to call him softly. Then, to her astonishment, she heard voices inside the room. Linda stood very still puzzled. No, they were not exactly in the room. The sudden wrak-wrak-wrak of that beastly door placed them—just over the sill out on the little porch.

WHO could it be? Tom, probably, smitten with the same idea and having stopped to invite Cousin Amos to join them, called in by the indignant old man to account for the noise and swing of the door. Cousin Amos, of course, would forget entirely his insistence on opening it, in spite of her express request that he should not. Well—let Tom bear the brunt of displeasure! Perhaps he could brace it somehow to stop in for the moment. A sudden appalling squeak filled her with renewed alarm lest the sound disturb Marvin Pratt or DeVos. Both of them, she knew, had had all they wanted of Cousin Amos! In fact she had promised that the Belgian, at least, should not even see again the man who had so affronted him. She pulled the room door gently to until it all but latched and made her escape unheard running downstairs rather amused than otherwise at Tom's plight.

But the door on the terrace was open and as she came out into the early sun, she saw a white-backed jersey rising and falling in rhythmic strokes as a familiar figure headed out from shore. Tom, no doubt of it—tired of waiting for her and apparently striking out for distant Connecticut. She prepared to emit the piercing yodel with which she was wont to signal him and checked herself only just in time as she remembered the hour. But if not Tom, who was upstairs with Cousin Amos? Had he been taken ill in the night and did he need help? Should she go back?

A slight scuffle of feet over her head on the little balcony startled her. Could the old man have had a fainting spell—a stroke perhaps? There was something strange about that subdued, shuffling sound! If only Tom, swimming away from her so unconcernedly, would turn so that she could wave him back!

Over her head there was a quick jumble of steps, an exclamation, and suddenly a cracking, rending, tearing sound. From above came hurtling a figure—headfirst—turning in the air, not two feet from where she stood, rooted and horrified, under the projecting balcony—to crumple in sickening distortion at her very feet. A white head moved feebly, a face turned toward her. Cousin Amos! A step forward, and she was kneeling beside him, tremblingly smoothing that drawn, white face, breathlessly gasping his name. The eyelids quivered and the blue, childlike eyes looked up at her at first blindly, then with dazed recognition.

"Linda!" She bent down for the painful whisper. "Over—over—"

"Yes, darling—you fell over—"

"No. He . . . th-threw—"

"He . . . who?"

There was no answer, nor could Cousin Amos ever tell her more.

* * *

HORROR-STRICKEN as she was over the old man's death, Linda grasped the significance of those few broken words. He was trying to tell her something. He had told her—a little. "Over—"

"No—he—threw—" She was sure she had caught that last faint gasp. Someone had been there—he had not fallen—!

Instantly she was on her feet. Grief and fury banished any thought of fear. She mustn't stay here—she couldn't help Cousin Amos now—or ever—except by finding who was up there. She was flashing through the central hall, a quick streak of crimson jersey and tanned flesh. Up the stairs—no attempt now to hide her flying steps. His door was exactly as she had left it, barely ajar. No one had come out! She pushed it open and went in.

A silent, empty room. Straight through Linda went, her mind on one thing only, toward the open casement. She glimpsed the green lawn and beyond the blue water of the Sound. She even noticed, subconsciously, that Tom had turned back and was almost to the float. But nearest of all she saw a broken, torn railing, the top bar wrenched apart, the narrow, graceful spindles careening drunkenly in every direction. She did not know whom she expected to see but there was no one on the balcony. The shock of it brought her to a rigid stop. She came to herself—she must go back, call Tom—

She started to turn and in that second caught a dark blur moving behind her. Linda had never consciously screamed. Now she could not—yet her throat constricted and her mouth opened in silent, awful pantomine which would have been a scream had breath been there to release it.

A cloth thrown around her neck from behind prevented the sound and, twisted tightly, prevented also her turning head or body to see her assailant. She jerked forward, clutching at the air. As she flung back her head, gasping for breath, she had a vague impression of seeing Tom, miles away, climbing on to the raft. Then water, air and land blurred and darkened and seemed to rush blackly at her with a horrible, dizzy roar. Suddenly, as the roaring grew unbearable, the tension was broken. Air came back to the gasping lungs—yet not quite in time. She swayed, unconscious, on her feet and pitched heavily forward into abyssmal blackness.

Corner Saloon Idea Rejected; Political Plum Scandal Bared

Well I see by papper how 18 students have sign up for a courst of study in addvanced Brewing which they giveing some place in Chicago but most of the people around here have been studying it for 15 years and are graduates and I should think those students down to Chicago would be way ahead in their home work but nobody knows how far acct. they drink up all their home work

Well Go After Busness sounds like good addvice now that Election is over but then when you stop and think where Busness has Gone you figure may be you better not go after it but wait till it reads the advertisements in the Pappers and comes back itself and now that the Monkey busness is over for two years we got room for some real Busness and you do not Blame the Demmocrats for celebrating now and takeing all the Pollitical plumbs they can get as they do not have a chance to holler only about every 16 or 20 years and being still al that time is what makes them so goofy

O they Chopped down the G. O. P.
O they Chopped down the G. O. P.
But when they voted straight
they gave some darn good men
the gate
When they kicked out the G. O. P.

But we stick by the G. O. P.
The party is good enought for me
We know we got good men
And we will get them back again
When the plumbs are off the Demmocratic tree

Well too bad some of them Plumbs can not be picked in time for Thanksgiven but may be they can hand out a few postmaster Jobs for Christmas presents and as long as I stayed out of the Campaing I think they owe something to me in the way of Plumbs or some kind of fruit from Victory and many a Plumb is handed out with no more reason than that but I have said enought

Well I read another letter asking about my persanel posibilon and it says as folows

Mr. Olofson

Dear Sir:

Am I to understand from your last article that you are in favor of the return of the corner saloon with its attending iniquities?

Mrs. S. T.

Dear Mrs. S. T. On second thought I am not in favor of the Corner Saloon but I think it would be handyer in the middle of the Block but one on Each corner and one in the middle would be better yet and as for the attending Inimquities to it I would want plenty of bartenders so you get god service when you are in a hurry

Pilgrim Turkey Dinner Is Feast Of Thanksgiving

There is no greater Thanksgiving Day tribute than a delicious roast turkey dinner with cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes and pumpkin pie.

This Thanksgiving can be an outstanding one for you and your family. Here is the meal that will make it outstanding—it is a Pilgrim turkey dinner adapted to the spirit of 1932.

Tomato or Oyster Cocktail
Roast Turkey with Chestnut or Sage Stuffing
Candied Sweet Potatoes or Mashed White Potatoes
Brussels Sprouts, Cauliflower, Broccoli, or Spinach
Cranberry Sauce Celery
Ripe Olives Radishes
Bread and Butter
Grapefruit Salad with Cheese Wafers
Pumpkin Pie with Quince Jelly
Coffee
Nuts and Mints

Sage Stuffing

¾ cup butter or other fat.
1 cup chopped celery and leaves.
2 medium-sized onions, chopped.
¼ cup chopped parsley.
2 quarts soft stale bread crumbs.
Salt and pepper.
1 to 2 tablespoons powdered sage.

Melt the fat in a skillet, add the celery, onion, and parsley and simmer for a few minutes. Add the bread crumbs, season with salt, pepper, and sage, and stir until well mixed and hot.

Chestnut Stuffing

(For a ten pound turkey)

1 pound chestnuts.
¼ cup turkey fat.
¼ cup butter.
2 cups chopped celery leaves and stalks.
½ cup chopped onion.
Few sprigs parsley, chopped.
6 cups bread crumbs.
Salt and pepper.
Savory seasoning.

Cook the chestnuts in boiling water for about 20 minutes. Remove the shells and brown skins while the nuts are still hot. Try out the turkey fat and add the butter. Cook the chopped celery and onion in this for a few minutes. Add the parsley and bread crumbs and season to taste with salt, pepper, and savory seasoning. Stir until the mixture is thoroughly hot. Wipe the turkey dry inside, sprinkle with salt, and fill with the hot stuffing.

Roast Turkey

Singe the turkey, remove the pin feathers, cleanse thoroughly, and wipe dry. Sprinkle the inside with salt, fill with hot stuffing, and sew up the opening. Fold the wings back on the neck, and tie the ends of the legs together under the tail. Rub the surface of the turkey with butter, sprinkle with salt, pepper, and flour, and lay a piece of fat over the breast bone.

To roast a young turkey, put the bird on its back on a rack in an open roasting pan. Brown lightly in a hot oven (450 degrees F.), then reduce the heat to moderate (350 degrees F.) and continue to cook the turkey until it is tender. Baste occasionally with the drippings. Allow about 15 minutes to the pound for roasting.

For an older turkey, cover the roasting pan as soon as the bird has browned, and cook at a moderate temperature until tender. Allow about 20 minutes to the pound.

To Carve a Turkey

1. Have a very sharp, long-bladed carving knife.
2. Place the turkey on its back with its neck at your left. Insert the carving fork at the point of the breast bone, the tines straddling the ridge, and hold the bird firmly.
3. Cut through the skin separating the leg from the body. Pull back the leg, disjoint and remove it.
4. Separate the drumstick from the thigh by cutting through at the joint.
5. Slice the meat from the leg into several portions.
6. Remove the wing by cutting down through the joint close to the body.
7. Carve the breast meat in thin slices.

Shrimps when boiled are brown; the pink ones so commonly seen are really a variety of prawn.

It's time to sharpen the ax and bring forth the famous American bird from his fattening pen for that abundant dinner on November 24. (Associated Press Photo)

20 Years Ago

The final chapter in the history of the Ford River Lumber company will be written next week when the last of the output of the big mill, formerly operated at Ford River, will be shipped from the docks at that place. All of the company's former big stock of lumber has been shipped during the past summer, with the exception of a small boatload of shingles, that is expected to be moved next week. The company closed its mill last spring, and since that time Supt. J. A. McGuire has been engaged in overseeing the shipment of the remaining stock on the docks.

After attending the sessions of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America in New York City, Dr. H. W. Long returned to Escanaba yesterday after an absence of two weeks.

Cloyd W. Miller, manager of the Miller-Wells Lumber company of Cleveland and formerly employed by the Ford River Lumber company, spent yesterday in Escanaba on business. With Daniel Wells, Jr., of Detroit, Mr. Miller has been engaged in business as a wholesale lumber jobber for the past three years.

C. A. Grinnell and A. A. Grinnell of Detroit, members of the firm of Grinnell Brothers, arrived in the city yesterday morning and were the guests of F. E. Levine, manager of the local branch.

Thanksgiving Kitchen Tips

When basting fowls during their baking, use one cup of boiling water to which three tablespoons of butter have been added. Baste every 25 minutes.

Cranberry jelly is traditionally served with holiday fowls. It can be served in one large mold or in individual molds. Chopped celery and nuts added to the molds gives excellent flavor.

When roasting a fowl, fasten small pieces of salt pork or bacon on the breast with a toothpick after it has been stuffed. The melting of the fat adds flavor as well as basting the fowl.

To prevent stuffing in a fowl from becoming too moist, wipe out the cavity thoroughly with a dry cloth.

If a ring mold has been used for molding cranberry jelly, unmold the jelly onto a large platter. Fill the center and surround with fringed celery and olives.

For goose or duck, serve apple sauce, jellied or baked apples. Currant jelly is also a pleasing accompaniment.

The stuffing for the fowl can change a meal to a banquet, so be sure to have the family's favorite stuffing.

Sear poultry for 25 minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees), then reduce the heat to moderately slow (250 degrees. Lower temperatures are advantageous as they produce more evenly cooked fowls and meats.

DESERT IS SAFE!

Traveling through northern Africa for 6,000 miles in an old rattle-trap automobile is perfectly safe, according to Miss Kathryn Hulme, who has debunked the old idea that desert shieks are waiting for attractive young rils who come riding through Algeria, Morocco and other far-away places.

Miss Humle, who has written a book telling all about desert courtesy, found that the women of the harems, in Arabia, have an unexpected sex loyalty. They will help along any woman with an intrigue against any man.

Varied Program Engages Junior Red Cross Group

Varied activities are engaging the time and interest of members of the Junior Red Cross at present, according to an outline of the program to be followed, up to the holiday period, announced by Mrs. Josephine Campbell, chairman.

The Junior members have already decorated 800 napkins for Thanksgiving trays in the veterans' hospital, making these in art classes under the supervision of Miss Lois Gaut. Members of the opportunity room have completed 100 tray favors and the pupils of St. Anne's are busily engaged in making an additional number. The art classes are also making nut cups for Christmas trays and 200 menu covers for the U. S. S. Bushnell at San Francisco.

In another department, the home economics, a worthy project is being given the finest of cooperation. Every girl in the entire department in both the Junior and Senior high schools is making at least one garment of the Red Cross material supplied for welfare relief work. Some of the girls are making more but each girl is completing at least one article of clothing. An exhibit of these garments, which will attract wide interest, is being planned for this week.

In the rural schools the pupils are making Christmas wreaths which will be sent to the veterans' hospital.

These activities are in addition to the regular Junior Red Cross Christmas work, the filling of Christmas boxes, which will start soon and which will occupy the attention of the members during the pre-holiday period.

Evelyn Magnuson Is the Bride Of George Murphy

At a wedding ceremony performed Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock Miss Evelyn E. Magnuson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Magnuson, 214 Stephenson avenue, became the bride of George Murphy of this city, son of Mrs. James E. Murphy, 319 North 15th street.

The ceremony took place in the study of the parsonage of St. Patrick's church with Rev. Fr. Gerald Harrington officiating.

The bride was attended by Miss Martha Spaeth, a close friend, and Leo Brunelle was the bridegroom's attendant.

The bride was beautifully gowned in a model of hyacinth blue pebble crepe, the gown fashioned with close-fitting bodice and extremely long skirt, with transparent velvet of a deeper shade of blue forming its puffed sleeves. She wore with it a silver metallic hat and matching slippers and gloves. Her only jewelry was a bracelet of silver. Her flowers were a corsage of roses and sweet peas.

The bridesmaid's gown was of pansy blue triple sheer crepe and with it she wore a hat of silver and blue, with matching slippers and gloves. She wore a corsage similar to the bride's.

Following the ceremony a reception for relatives and close friends was held at the Magnuson home. A color scheme of orchid and yellow in which baby mums were used, formed the home decorations, and these flowers were used in the bridal table centerpiece.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy left on a wedding trip through lower Michigan during which they will visit in Detroit and at other points of interest. They will make their home in Escanaba.

The bride is a graduate of Escanaba high school and of the Western Union school at Valparaiso, Ind., and she has been engaged as an operator at the Western Union office here. Mr. Murphy is a graduate of St. Joseph's high school and is a salesman with the Carpenter Cook company.

Miss Kathryn LeMire left Friday night for Minneapolis where she attended the Minnesota-Michigan championship game on Saturday.

— THIS CURIOUS WORLD —

ALTHOUGH the shark is a true fish, it seems more nearly related to mammals in some respects. It has more love for its young than is generally found among the fish tribe. The shark family is a large one, there being many forms, the largest reaching a length of 45 feet. Contrary to common belief, only a few of the many species are dangerous to man. The white shark is, perhaps, the most dangerous, while the large basking sharks is absolutely harmless.

SIDE GLANCES — By George Clark

"And I say he's going to be a lawyer!"

— THIS CURIOUS WORLD —

SOME WRITERS insist that the turkey got its name from the resemblance of the bird's curious head adornments to the fez, a head-piece worn by Turkish citizens. Wild turkeys were plentiful in colonial days, and even at the beginning of the 19th century they could be bought for 6 cents each in Massachusetts. When Cortez visited Mexico he found great droves of turkeys kept as a food supply for the eagles and vultures of the royal aviaries.

Gladstone Banks Will Distribute $16,500 in Christmas Savings

Approximately $16,500 will be distributed among Christmas club members early in December by the First National and State Savings Banks of Gladstone, it was learned yesterday from authoritative sources. The checks will start going out in the mail about Dec. 5, it is planned.

Throughout the United States some four hundred and forty million dollars will be distributed to about ten and one half million members by seven thousand banking institutions and organizations, it has been estimated by Herbert F. Rawll, president of the incorporated organization, Christmas club.

The average amount received by each member amounts to $42.00. While this figure represents a reduction of about 11 % compared with a year ago, the buying power of $42.00 this year, is greater than the average amount received by each member in 1931. Considered from another angle, if all the cash in circulation in this country last year were evenly divided among our total population of 120,000,000 people, each person would have about $40.00 in-the-pocket cash.

An optimistic expression is found in many reports from all sections that the distribution of more than four hundred million dollars in cash within the next two weeks will add a terrific impetus to a revived urge for construction and useful purchases on the part of families that have discarded a paralyzing fear that the worst is yet to come.

Expect Increase

Member banks, reporting, uniformly predict an increase in Christmas club activities for 1933 as a result of greatly improved conditions in the general banking situation and a restored confidence of the public in the country's banks.

It is gratifying to the management of the Christmas club that the distribution indicates a larger percentage of the fund will be used for constructive purposes this year than previously.

The estimate shows that the total distribution will be used approximately as follows:

Christmas Purchases	38%	$167,500,000
Permanent Savings & Investment	28%	123,500,000
Year End Commitments	11%	48,500,000
Taxes	10%	44,000,000
Mortgage Amortization and Interest	6%	26,500,000
ins. Premiums	5%	22,000,000
Education, Travel and Charity	2%	9,000,000
	100%	$441,000,000

In the distribution of the Christmas club for this year, New York State leads the other states with $94,710,000, while Pennsylvania reports $53,922,000. New York City's metropolitan area will receive approximately $62,000,000.

The total in Michigan banks is $16,353,000.

PLAN LECTURES ON SOCIALISM

David Rinne Will Present First of Series on Tuesday Night

"Capitalism, a Dying Order—and the Solution," will be the subject of a prepared address to be delivered in Gladstone at the Legion hall on Tuesday, Nov. 22, by David Rinne of Pittsburgh, Pa. The subject will deal with what Socialists believe to be the most important problem facing the world today. The lecture will begin at 8 o'clock and is being given under the auspices of the local unit of the Socialist party. There will be no admission charge.

The lecture is the first of a series planned for the winter on varied subjects dealing with present day social and economic problems. All will be non-political in nature and arranged for their cultural value.

Mr. Rinne's Tuesday night subject, it is said, will take into account the fac that though modern science through mass production has solved the problem of producing the necessities of life in great quantities, yet millions of human beings lack even animal necessities, the problem of distribution not having been solved.

Socialism, it is claimed, is a science which aims at the solution of this problem by seeking out the weaknesses of the present order and attempting to bring some system and order into our present chaotic economic scheme which will insure an even flow of necessities and luxuries into the lives of all useful and willing workers.

Rinne, who campaigned here recently in the interests of the party and Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, has had years of experience in labor's industrial and political struggles and on the party lecture platform and is quite capable of presenting the ideals of Socialism.

Questioning and open discussion is invited as a closing feature of the gathering.

More Deer Stories Than Deer In U. P.

Each deer season finds conversation on unusual hunting incidents at its peak. Many of course are woven out of vivid imaginations and then exaggerated and magnified with each successive telling. A good yarn was spun the other day, which although, unusual, is still quite probable, and the persons involved vouch for its veracity.

A couple of excited hunters occasioned to knock over a nice buck with a charge from a shotgun. Picking up their prize they shoved it into the rear end of the car and sped homeward. About halfway home they heard a great commotion and before they could realize what was happening, the deer had raised havoc, tearing up the rear end of the car. The mighty hunters had evidently only stunned the deer.

A similar story is circulated in which the deer did not become quite so violent, merely emitting a few "blats" from its storage place in the car. The hunters finished him with a few well-directed hammer blows on its head.

Another yarn now making the rounds is that of the game warden who entered a vacant shack in a deer area and found a piece of untagged venison hung from the ceiling. Confiscating the meat, the warden is said to have left a note advising the hunter where they might find it should they desire to retain possession. The following day the hunters located the warden, and claimed the meat, saying that it was perfectly legal and that had the warden looked about the shack more carefully he would have found the tagged deer head.

TO HOLD RICE FUNERAL TODAY

Will Hold Military Rites This Afternoon for Civil War Vet

Funeral services for George W. Rice, 90, Civil War veteran and one of Schoolcraft county's most picturesque pioneers, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home on the River road in the Wood's district and at 2:30 o'clock from the Wood's chapel. A military funeral will be had with members of the local military organizations, the Spanish War veterans and American Legion, in charge. Rev. Delovd Huenink, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will have charge of the service and interment will be made in the Woods cemetery.

Mr. Rice had been ailing for the past two years, but did not become seriously ill until two weeks ago when he was confined to his bed. He passed away at 6:45 o'clock Thursday evening as the result of complications due to old age.

Born on March 12, 1842, at Tioga, Pennsylvania, Mr. Rice spent his early boyhood in the state of New York. The Civil war broke out when he was a youth of 18 when he was engaged in the mechanics trade. He immediately enlisted in the army at Elmira, New York, February 3, 1860, for a three-year period, but was not discharged until the conclusion of the war in 1865.

Saw Lincoln

He served throughout the war as a private in Captain George D. Norton's Company C of the first battilion of the 14th regiment of the U. S. Infantry. Mr. Rice had the distinction of serving in most of the big battles of the war including the Battle of Gettysburg and of Bull Run and was one of the three or four pioneers remaining in this state who saw Abraham Lincoln. His presence at the Memorial Day programs in the Wood's district was one of the features of the occasions during the past several years.

The deceased came to Manistique from the east in April, 1877 and four years later took up farming in the Wood's district where he has since resided. Fraternally, Mr. Rice was a member of the local Odd Fellows' lodge, being one of the charter members, and was also a charter member of the old Hull Grange. He was also affiliated with the Baptist and Methodist churches.

Of six children, three survive, Henry, of Milwaukee, Frank, of Iron Mountain, and William, at home. Thirty-five grandchildren and 25 great grandchildren also survive.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—For the first time this week, stocks squeezed through with average net gains today, although it was still a very sleepy market.

Early unsettlement passed away before the session was an hour old and in the later trading enough shorts covered to bring a placid advance. Some stocks finished with gains of 1 to 2 points, although in many instances the rise was only fractional. Turnover amounted to 385,556 shares.

The firmer closing tone to security markets here may have had something to do with a spurt in Chicago wheat, which improved more than a cent a bushel. Cotton was a little heavy.

U. S. Steel and American Telephone were fairly popular with stock buyers toward the close, showing respective net gains of 1 and 2 points. American Can, Case, United Aircraft, Consolidated Gas, Drug, Allied Chemical, Eastman, New York Central, Santa Fe and Union Pacific did as well or slightly better. McIntyre Porcupine jiggled up more than a point.

Curb Mart Prices Advance Slightly

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—The curb market lifted slightly today in quiet trading. Transfers totaled 60,000 shares, against 120,000 last Saturday.

Price changes were fractional. Aluminum Co. gained more than 2. Great Atlantic & Pacific slid in odd lot trading, losing yesterday's gain. But elsewhere, stocks moved in a restricted orbit.

Electric Bond and Share rallied a fraction. Cities Service gained a little, while United Light & Power "A" closed a shade lower. American Superpower and American Gas & Electric were steady.

The oil stocks, which have shown considerable steadiness as a result of eastern gasoline price advances, were neglected today. Standard of Indiana and Standard of Kentucky both lost a fraction, but other leaders were not actively traded.

New Jersey Zinc was down about a point. Deere & Co. was about steady at a shade under yesterday's close.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Nov. 19—Jerked upward by wet harvest reports from Argentina and by big purchases of North American wheat for Europe, grain markets developed notable strength today.

For a moment at the start, wheat prices hovered within 1-8 cent of the all-time bottom record, and then climbed straight aloft, with latest dealings at the day's top level. Trade leaders expressed opinions that liquidation of December wheat contracts would hereafter be of less volume than had generally been feared.

Wheat closed firm, 7-8 to 1¼ above yesterday's finish, corn ¼ to ½ up, oats 1-8 to ¾ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

Corn and oats followed the action of wheat. There were intimations of some export business in corn.

Provisions reflected steadiness of the hog market.

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Aside from the quiet strength displayed by highest grade investment loans, the trend of the bond market was irregularly lower today.

It was one of the dullest sessions of the year, sales totaling only $3,648,000, with the majority of transactions involving less than 10 bonds. The Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate issues relaxed one-tenth of a point.

The railroad section exhibited an easier tendency in response to the freight car loadings report for the week ended November 12, which showed a decline of more than 50,000, a somewhat greater than seasonal falling off in traffic.

While most of the semi-speculative groups were inclined to dip, several "gilt edge" obligations either duplicated their previous top marks or advanced fractionally to new highs for the year. Among these were some maturities of American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Humble Oil, Brooklyn Union Gas and Bangor & Aroostook Railway. Many other similar loans were either unchanged or a bit higher.

A HOTTER FIRE THAT lasts LONGER

FOLKS think I am a tough, rough old customer ... and I can be mighty cold and bitter when I want to be. But there's one fellow that licks me every time ... he's the hottest thing I ever knew. His name is Winterking Coal and he sure has made a lot of friends up here in Wisconsin.

When it comes to real heat there isn't anything that can touch him. He burns cleanly... with very little ashes and lasts much longer than any other coal I ever battled with.

I understand one of the reasons folks around here like him is the fact that you don't need any special instructions ... put him in your furnace and you get perfect results.

Walter E. Hubert Takes Charge Of Iron River Store

Walter E. Hubert, former Gladstone resident, has arrived at Iron River from Biddeford, Maine, to take charge of the J. C. Penney store, succeeding Waino Lahti, who has retired.

Arriving in Iron River with Mr. Hubert were his wife and two daughters, Arlene Rae, three, and Jean, five, and Mrs. Hubert's sister, Miss Loretta Schreiner. The trip from Biddeford, made by motor, terminated Wednesday evening with an accident on Ice Lake hill, near Iron River, as the Hubert machine swung around on an icy pavement and turned over. Except for minor scratches and bruises none of the family was injured and the car was not badly damaged.

Mr. Hubert is a graduate of Gladstone high school, class of 1918. For many years he was employed with the Goldstein and Hub stores here. He entered the employ of the Penney company at Ironwood about eight years ago, and four years ago he was transferred to the store in Maine.

Mr. Hubert's parents now reside in Flint.

THEATRES

Richard Dix, star of "Cimarron," "Secret Service" and other recent romantic films, has an entirely new kind of role in "Roar of the Dragon," the dramatic story of turbulent Manchuria now showing at the Rialto Theatre.

In contrast to the rollicking, light-hearted character he usually portrays, Dix is seen as a cynical disillusioned skipper of the Chinese river service, with little faith in men and none at all in women.

His boat disabled by Chinese bandits, Dix and his varied group of passengers take refuge in a small interior village where they convert a former Mandarin's palace into a stockade.

Here, under fire from the bandits and threatened by plague, Dix meets and falls in love with a beautiful Russian woman of mystery. Her calm courage, her willingness to risk the meanest privation to remain with him, rejuvenate Dix and he changes from a selfish sluggard to a daring leader of the beleagured refugees.

Michigan State Defeats Detroit Titans, 7 to 0

M'NUTT SCORES ON LONG RUN

10,000 Persons Witness Game Played at East Lansing

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 19. (AP)—After nine lean years, Michigan State college came back today to defeat its traditional gridiron enemy, the University of Detroit, 7 to 0.

Breaking through time and again to smear the vaunted Detroit passing attack, the Spartans launched an offensive of their own built around the fleet-footed Bernard McNutt, fullback. It was McNutt's 34-yard dash early in the first period which brought State's lone touchdown. Bob Monnett kicked the extra point.

The Spartans unleashed their attack early in the game, after an exchange of punts, Eliowitz tossed a lateral pass to Monnett for a 15-yard gain. On the next play McNutt broke through the line laid his course along the sidelines and crossed the Titan goal line.

Strong Defenses

Detroit's most promising thrust ended against an impregnable Spartan line on State's 14-yard stripe in the second period. In the third period State pushed through to the Detroit one-yard line but the Titans held.

The failure of the Detroit aerial offensive, despite Nott's accurate heaves, contributed heavily to State's victory. On the occasions that State's defensive mechanism did not foil the passes there seemed to be an inability of the Detroiters to hold onto the ball.

Both teams displayed strong defense in the pinches. Time and again State launched a promising drive into Detroit territory only to batter itself out for no gain against the Titan forward wall.

Ten thousand persons witnessed the game which was the last of the season for State.

LITTLE CAMELS

Washington—Camels used to roam the United States, but they were just small counterparts of those who ply the deserts of Africa. So says Dr. Charles W. Gilmore, Smithsonian Institution palentologist, who was digging around the Rocky Mountain foothills this summer. There he found the skeletons of prehistoric camels that measured only two and a half to three feet tall.

Hillsdale College Turns Back Hope

Hillsdale, Mich., Nov. 19 (AP)—Hillsdale college successfully defended its M. I. A. A. football championship by defeating Hope college, 7 to 0 this afternoon. The teams battled much on even terms for the first half.

Midway in the third period Hillsdale began a drive down field led by Dunlap. After a 50-yard march Van Voorhees was sent over with the touchdown on a quarterback sneak. Dunlap kicked the point after touchdown from placement.

The victory gave Hillsdale a clean slate for the M. I. A. A. competition this year, with four victories. Hope with one victory and two ties had a chance to capture the title by defeating the Dales but was unequal to the task.

Hillsdale's seven points today brought its total scoring record for the season to 158 points against its opponents' 28.

Ironwood Crushes Stambaugh By 25-0

Ironwood, Nov. 19 (Special)—The Ironwood Red Devils crushed Stambaugh's hopes for a slice of the peninsula championship today, walloping the Hilltoppers, 25 to 0, and, incidentally, furthered their own claim for a portion of the mythical title.

Neither team had been defeated previously although Ironwood had played a tie game with Bessemer.

With Stambaugh eliminated, the undefeated high school football teams of the peninsula are Menominee, Soo, Ironwood and St. Joseph of Escanaba.

PURDUE BEATS HOOSIERS, 27-7

Boilermakers Undefeated But Tie Game Spoils Their Record

Ross-Ade Stadium, LaFayette, Ind., Nov. 19, (AP)—Purdue's Boilermakers ran and passed their way to a 27 to 7 victory over Indiana University here today, completing an undefeated football season, in which a tie game prevented their sharing the Western Conference title.

One touchdown in the first quarter, two in the second and one in the third, were the result of the dazzling speed of th Purdue attack. The Crimson eleven fought back in the final quarter to drive 45 yards for its only touchdown.

Purdue's first scoring drive came late in the first period. Starting on the Indiana 39-yard line, Hecker, the Houston, Tex., halfback, passed to Moss for 13 yards, and skirted the Indiana left end for 20 more, then Roy Horstman plunged for the touchdown from the three-yard marker.

Purdue Runs Wild

The Boilermakers ran wild in the second quarter. Starting on his own 45-yard line, Purvis passed 24 yards to Moss, then ran 13 yards to the Indiana 17-yard line. Horstmann and Hacker plunged for a first down, then Hecker took the ball on a reverse and sped around end for the touchdown. Three minutes later, Purvis, standing on his own thirty-yard line, looped a long forward pass to Moss, who ran 25 yards for another score.

Moss again caught a long toss from Purvis, midway of the third period, for the final Boilermaker score. The play started on the Purdue 40 yard line and Moss again ran 25 yards, after receiving it.

Indiana found its own offensive strength late in the fourth quarter after several Purdue substitutes were in the game. Two accurate passes, from Opasik to Dickey, and some neat running by Don Veller, sophomore halfback, took the ball to the two-yard line from where Jones dove over for the touchdown. Two more of Opasik's tosses were good one through interference to give the Crimson the pall on the Purdue three-yard line as the game ended.

ground gainer, broke into the open on a dash through tackle.

Only Newman, coming up quickly from his safety position, remained between Lund and the goal, but as Lund attempted to dodge the Wolverine, he slipped and ended his 13 yard run without much effort on Newman's part.

Most of the game resolved itself down to a punting duel between Regeczi, Michigan fullback, and Lund, in which the Wolverines easily led, averaging 40 yards on 20 kicks, to 32 in 16 kicks by Minnesota.

For the game, Michigan gained 85 yards including 18 by passes, while losing 58, and Minnesota gained 126 yards, including ten by a pass, with losses of 40 yards. Minnesota fumbled eight times, Michigan once.

For eleven Gophers and six Wolverines, the game was the last of their collegiate careers. Besides Manders, Minnesota loses Capt. Walt Hass, Tackles Wells and Gay, Ends Robinson and Dillner, and three guards, Koski, Dennerly and Apmann, of those who service in today's game, and Jerry Griffin, and Swartz, reserve backs.

Yale Defeats Harvard In Annual Battle, 19-0

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 19 (AP)—A rainstorm and the full fury of Yale's greatest scoring wave of the season struck Harvard today at the same time. The combined outburst swamped the Crimson under a score of 19 to 0.

In between the sensational attacking exploits of Bob Lassiter, Walter Levering and Dud Parker, Yale's defense four times took the ball on downs deep in its own territory. After being halted three times in the first half, once with only two yards to go for a touchdown, Harvard's offense, led by the gallant Jack Crickard, crumbled. The Cambridge "crew" threatened only once in the last half and that was no more than a gesture as the Elis ran wild through the mud and rain.

Lassiter Is Star

But for the over-eagerness of the blue-shirted reserves, Yale might have scored two more touchdowns. They penetrated Harvard's ten-yard line twice in the last quarter without being able to produce another scoring punch.

The chief honors of this Eli holiday went to Bob Lassiter. He didn't cross the Harvard goal line but his running and passing were the main factors in each of the three touchdowns, aided by the plunging of Walter Levering and the blocking of Joe Crowley.

Lassiter tossed only three passes but he completed all of them for long gains that helped demoralize the Crimson defense.

Lassiter's first pass to Dud Parker, the kicking end, was good for a 28-yard gain in the opening period and led to a touchdown by Levering on a short buck as the climax of a 45-yard advance. The next heave, to O'Connell, for 21 yards, failed to increase the scoring but the third and last pass, to Marting, with the ball on Harvard's 25 yard mark, accounted for the final Eli touchdown in the fourth period.

In between these aerial attacks, Lassiter's twisting dashes off tackle in the heavy going accounted for fifty of the 55 yards the Elis marched for their other score, in the third quarter. Yale used up only seven plays in this brilliant drive. Lassiter, skidding 10 to 15 yards at a clip, was hauled down from behind by Jack Crickard within a yard of the Harvard goal but Levering easily bucked the remaining distance for the fullback's second score.

Even Rentner Played

Then a few seconds later Roy Auguston replaced Olson. He passed and plunged for a second touchdown. Iowa came back and started a march down the field. On the Wildcat 20-yard line Whelan did his heroic run after snagging a Hawkeye pass.

Iowa's only touchdown was in the third period after a 41-yard march down the field. Ash was the spearhead on this drive, assisted by Laws, who scored from the four-yard line.

After the Hawks scored, Northwestern resumed its touchdown spree.

Even Ernest "Pug" Rentner, Northwestern's captain and All-American halfback of 1931, participated in the scoring carnival in the fourth period, despite two cracked ribs. After Auguston had scored once in this session, Rentner came into the game. He did nothing but stand by and watch while his mates advanced the ball to Iowa's one-foot line. Then his team mates split the Iowa defense wide open, handed him the ball and he ran through to score the touchdown standing up.

Syracuse, Columbia Play Scoreless Tie

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Pushed back almost to its goal line in every period and roundly outplayed in every particular, Syracuse rallied in the pinches today to hold the Columbia Lions and Cliff Montgomery to a scoreless draw in a game played throughout in a driving rain.

Only about 4,000 fans huddled in Baker bowl while the two elevens splattered up and down a field ankle deep in ooze. It was raining when they started and raining when they finished.

WILDCATS LICK IOWA BY 44-6

Hawkeyes Suffer Worst Rout of Season at Dyche Stadium

Dyche Stadium, Evanston, Ill., Nov. 19 (AP)—In biting cold-weather, Northwestern closed its season today by beating Iowa, 44 to 6, and handing the Hawkeyes, who have not won a game in Western conference competition since 1929, their worst rout of the season.

The Wildcats, after a scoreless first period, ran wild in the second and fourth, chalking up three touchdowns in each, and threw in another in the third period for good measure.

The Wildcats opened up their scoring drive soon after the start of the second period with Olson carrying the ball over from the four-yard line.

Five Wrestlers— Champions All

Ames, Ia.—Iowa State's football squad may not be so hot this year, but the school can put up a squad of wrestlers who are all champions of one thing or another.

Five matmen will be back for the Cyclone team this year.

Bob Hess was the 174-pound member of the American Olympic team and national collegiate and state 175-pound champion last spring.

George Martin was Big Six co-champion and state champion in the 165-pound class, and Midwest A. A. U. 155-pound champ last winter. He also qualified for the final Olympic tryouts.

Merril Fervert holds the state 155-pound title, Lawrence Gibson was Big Six 118-pound leader in 1930, and Roland Lille holds both the state and Big Six 118-pound title for 1932.

Creighton Wallops Wyoming By 34-0

Omaha, Nov. 19 (AP)—Scoring in every quarter and adding emphasis with two touchdowns in the last period, Creighton university's football team ended its season with a 34 to 0 victory over Wyoming university today. Howdy Gordon, plunging right halfback, accounted for three touchdowns as the Omahans swept over the Cowboys with orthodox line play and end sweeps.

RAIN AND SLUSH MAR GRID TILT

Army Wins, 7-0, With Reserves Playing Most Of the Game

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 19 (AP)—The Army regulars, resting for the coming big games with Notre Dame and Navy, played just five minutes against West Virginia Wesleyan today, struck once and swiftly for a touchdown and then retired to watch the reserves hold safely for a 7-0 victory.

There was just one lull in a storm that had raged all night and continued through the game and in that period the Cadet "big" team sent Felix (Pick) Vidal scampering 75 yards for the only score, a brilliant dash that saw the little Army back dodge and twist his way through the entire Wesleyan team.

Fumble 20 Times

Only a few hundred spectators, aside from the always loyal corps, huddled under raincoats and umbrellas in Michie stadium to watch as queer a football game as probably ever has been played. The gridiron was ankle deep in mud and the rain, sweeping the fields in gusts that almost blinded the players, made the ball as slippery as if it had been greased. There were at least 20 fumbles, none of them at very critical points, however, and the ball carrier fequently lost his footing before he had hardly started.

The strange sight was presented through most of the first half of both teams kicking on first down waiting for the "break" that never came.

Hall, lanky Bobcat quarterback, and Buckler, reserve Army half, waged a brilliant duel of punts all through the game, Buckler getting off one kick that sent the soggy ball soaring 60 yards on the fly to roll dead on Wesleyan's 10-yard line.

The regulars, going in to start the second half, were not long in scoring. Stopped once on the Bobcat's 38-yard line when Ken Fields fumbled and shortly thereafter set back to their own 25 by a 25-yard penalty for unnecessary roughness, they sent Vidal from there on his scoring dash.

Marquette Defeats Presidents By 6-0

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 19 (AP)—A 15-yard forward pass which resulted in a touchdown and gave Marquette university's football team a 6 to 0 victory over Washington & Jefferson here today.

The game was played before a handful of shivering spectators, as the feature event of Marquette's annual Dad's Day.

The Hilltoppers' score came in the second period after a Washington and Jefferson punt rolled into the end zone.

Marquette took possession on its own 20 yard line and advanced by a mixture of passes and line plays, with Capt. Gene Ronzani doing most of the ball lugging and all of the passing. It began with a ten yard gain by Ronzani and ended with a pass from Ronzani to McEasy, which the latter caught a few yards from the goal. He ran unmolested the remaining few steps. Becker's attempted place kick was blocked.

RAMBLERS SINK MIDDIES, 12-0

Navy Shows Scrap But Notre Dame Offense Is Too Potent

Municipal Stadium, Cleveland, Nov. 19 (AP)—Notre Dame had what touchdowns there were today but Navy had the fight and so the Ramblers could level the Middies only by a 12 to 0 score.

Twice in the second period the green shirted raiders from South Bend smashed over the Navy goal line but after that a stubborn Middy defense halted their fast running backs and played the powerful Rambler line on even terms when its goal line was threatened.

Even at that, the Ramblers' 12 points was no criterion of the difference in the teams' offensive punch. Whatever edge the Navy had was in stubborn defensive strength. Notre Dame piled up 24 first downs and 310 yards while Navy was making only 92 yards and four first downs, two of those by the penalty route.

Both Notre Dame touchdowns could be traced directly to the aerial attack. Failing to count in the first quarter on straight football, Lukats hurled a long pass to Murphy shortly after the second period opened and he wiggled through to the 10 yard line. On the next play Joe Sheeketski cut back through center and crossed the goal line. Murphy's attempt for the extra point from placement scarcely left the ground.

The period was only a few minutes older when Lukats' punt escaped Erck, Navy safety man, and rolled to the 4-yard line. After the punt, Leonard and Sheeketski combined to carry the oval to the 9-yard line from where Lukats passed to Sheeketski in the last 15 seconds of first half play and Sheesketski went over standing up. Lukats' kick for the extra point was wide.

Place Kick Gives Buckeyes 3-0 Win

Memorial Stadium, Champaign, Ill., Nov. 19, (AP)—Its last desperate drive for a touchdown stalled by an Illinois defense that was just as desparate, Ohio State called Mickey Vuchinich back into action today to place-kick the Buckeyes to a 3 to 0 triumph in a thrilling Western Conference football final.

With less than four minutes to play in the fourth period, a scoreless tie appeared the best either of the bruised, nearly frozen groups of warriors could expect. Even with the Buckeyes, Lew Hinchman, Bill Carroll and Carl Cramer, passing and battering goalward, the slow going and inspired Illinois defense made the Ohio cause appear bleak.

With the ball on the Illinois nine-yard line, Cramer and Carroll took three shots at running plays only to wind up with a net gain of exactly nothing. Ohio State took time out. Captain Hinchman signalled for Vuchinich who had been replaced by Wetzel, and with Cramer holding the ball, the big fullback put his 196 pounds behind a kick that sailed squarely between the goal posts.

FORDHAM TIPS OREGON STATE

Mighty Ram Wins by Margin of Safety; Score is 8 to 6

New York, Nov. 19, (AP)—A brawny, mud-soaked lineman heaved up through a drenching rain to block a kick, and the splendid eight-year record of Oregon State against eastern foes tumbled into the mud wallow of Fordham's playing field today by the scant margin of that play, a safety, 8 to 6.

For three full periods, the husky Beavers from the northwest struggled through the worst weather conditions of the season to hold the mighty Ram of Fordham even, each with a touchdown.

Early in the first quarter Ed Danowski, Fordham's crack punter, fumbled trying to kick a pig skin against a solid sheet of driving rain. He got the ball back, but not until it had rolled to his two yard line.

80-Yard Drive

There he kicked again, a marvelous effort under the conditions, reaching out to his own 45 yard line. Immediately Oregon State launched its drive, with little Tommy Ward, a mite halfback, slipping inside the tackles and around the ends, five and six yards at a clip, until he finally staggered four yards around his own end for the touchdown.

Fordham rallied then, continuing on through the second, until an eighty yard drive wound up with Andy Pavlicovic plugging through guard for the last two yards and the tying points.

Thus matters stood until half way through the final quarter.

Keith Davis, Oregon State kicker, finally was forced to punt from his eight yard line after an attempt from his 20 had been blocked, but recovered by the Beavers.

George Fenton, Ram tackle, promptly broke through again, blocked the kick, and tackled Davis over the Oregon State goal for a safety and the deciding points.

Stagg's Last Grid Team At Chicago Is Defeated By 18-7

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg ended his record breaking football run today but there was no story book finish.

Huddled on the players' bench as head football coach for the last official time at the University of Chicago, he watched his 41st and final Maroon team routed by the bristling Badgers from Wisconsin by a two touchdown margin. The final score was Wisconsin 18; Chicago 7.

For a few minutes early in the second period, it looked as if Stagg's curtain call of football would be crowned with one of the outstanding upset victories of the season. His Maroons, badly outcharged on the right side of the line, had come back from almost nowhere to take a 7 to 6 lead. The Badgers rushed back, scored another touchdown for a five point lead at half time and then added another by clean superiority to clinch the victory.

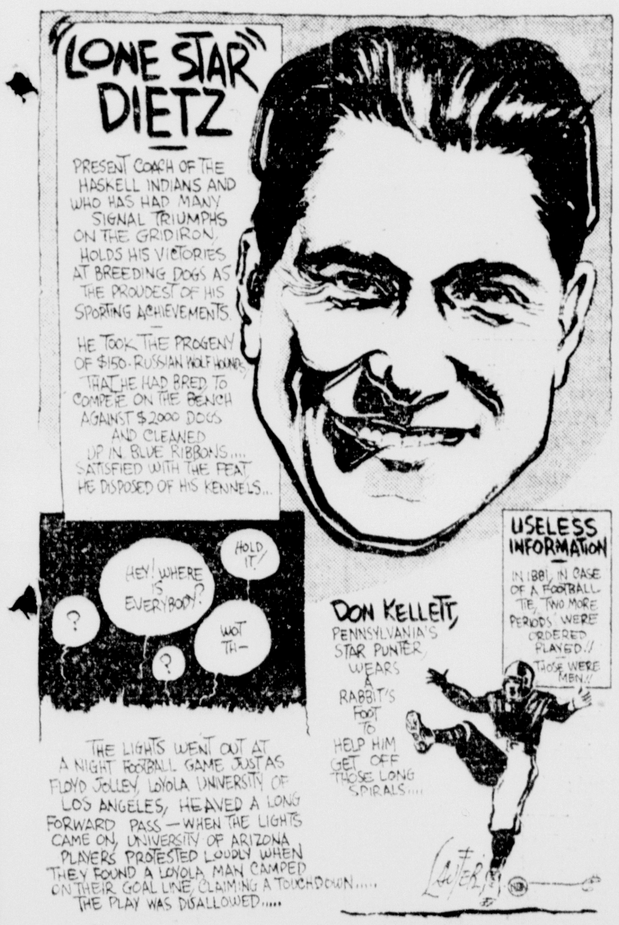

Drake No Match for Iowa State Machine

State Field, Ames, Iowa, Nov. 19 (AP)—An alert Iowa State football team took advantage of the breaks today to roll up a 34 to 13 victory over Drake in the 35th game between the two schools.

The Cyclones capitalized on several fumbles and intercepted passes to score. Drake's two touchdowns came by the aerial route.

Football Favorites in Country Are Winners

Fighting the elements as well as hardy rivals, the nation's football favorites smashed through yesterday to victories that decided three conference championships and all but clinched two others.

Michigan's Wolvermes, who shared the Big Ten crown with Purdue and Northwestern a year ago, gained clear title to the 1932 championship with a 3-0 triumph over Minnesota as the climax to an undefeated and untied season. Utah, crushing the Colorado Aggies, 16-0, won the Rocky Mountain Conference title for the fifth successive year. Nebraska conquered Oklahoma, 5-0.

Auburn Wins, 14-7

Meanwhile Auburn in the Southern Conference, Nebraska in the Big Six, and Texas Christian were checking in with victories that left these titles all but secure. Auburn spotted Georgia one touchdown, but won, 14-7, and Texas Christian whipped Rice, 16-6.

In the east, where a terrific rainstorm stalled virtually every major team's attack, the Yale Bulldogs uncovered a remarkable offensive to trounce Harvard, 19-0, the worst defeat the Crimson had suffered in this historic series since 1902.

Pitt, unbeaten but twice tied by intersectional foes, nosed out Carnegie Tech, 6-0, while Army, another power in the section, had to call on the first team to chalk up a 7-0 decision over West Virginia Wesleyan. Columbia and Holy Cross, hot favorites both, had to be content with scoreless ties against Syracuse and Manhattan, respectively, as the sloggy going ruined the effectiveness of running and passing attacks. Villanova handed Temple's Owls their first defeat, 7-0.

Fordham, conqueror of St. Mary's Gaels two weeks ago, whipped another far western aggregation, Oregon State, 8-6, by virtue of a safety in the fourth quarter. Navy put up a magnificent defense against Notre Dame at Cleveland, but bowed, 12-0. Marquette defeated Washington & Jefferson, 6-0.

Michigan's tight battle with Minnesota was the high spot of the Big Ten's closing program marked also by victories for Purdue, the runner-up; Ohio State, Northwestern and Wisconsin. Purdue swamped Indiana, 25-7; Wisconsin beat Chicago, 18-7; Ohio State nosed out Illinois, 3-0, and Northwestern won from Iowa, 44-6. Michigan State beat Detroit, 7-0, in their annual duel.

California and Stanford, bitter Pacific Coast Conference rivals, battled to a scoreless draw as the University of California at Los Angeles, hoping to share the conference title with Southern California, buried Montana, 32-0.

Only Auburn, of the leaders, was in action in the Southern Conference. Georgia Tech beat Florida and Maryland turned back Washington & Lee by 6-0 counts, and Duke won from North Carolina, 7-0. Tulane swept aside Sewanee, 26-0.

Chatfield Foundry Now Manufacturing Automobile Glass

The Chatfield Machine & Foundry Co., 718-22 Stephenson, has just concluded negotiations with Thoma Glass, Inc., nationally known manufacturers of replacement glass services for automobiles, whereby the local firm becomes the associate manufacturing distributor for Thoma glass in Escanaba and surrounding territory. Chatfield's will now manufacture Thoma replacement glass parts—windshield and body glass—for all makes and model cars, and glass accessories for automobiles, right in their own shop at Escanaba.

The necessary manufacturing equipment is now being installed by factory machanics and an expert factory service instructor is enroute to Escanaba to set the wheels in motion and give necessay manufacturing instruction to the local distributor organization to turn out finished parts. One interesting piece of equipment is a patented cutting table whereby factory blue print drawings are mechanically transposed to the cutting table, facilitating the cutting of swipes and curves with absolute accuracy. Safety shatterless glass, rapidly coming into prominence as standard equipment for automobiles, will also be handled here. Grinding equipment which removes the rough and sharp edge of the glass by use of abrasives, smoothing stone and polishing wheel to put the polished edges on the glass, are a part of the equipment installed at the Escanaba machine works, and the public is invited to call and inspect the new facilities for servicing automobiles.

'LOST' HUNTER ONLY VISITING

Out 24 Hours, Walks Into Camp as Searchers Scour Woods

While state police, conservation officers and a group of 12 hunters scoured the woods of northern Luce county in search of him, Clyde Anderson of St. Johns, Mich., missing for twenty-four hours, walked into camp yesterday.

When told that a search was on for him, Anderson expressed surprise and stated that he had not been lost but had stayed overnight at another camp visiting. Anderson, staying at the Dave Ritter camp near the Stone bridge in Northern Luce went out Friday morning and failed to return that night. When he had not yet appeared on Saturday morning the searching party was organized.

An unidentified hunter is reported to have dropped dead on the Fox River road west of Seney today while preparing to break camp and leave the woods. State police have gone to the scene to return the body to Newberry.

The kill, which is reported fair, is beginning to come in from the woods and many bucks passed through on cars or were shipped from here yesterday. However, seven inches of snow and low temperatures are making hunting hard work, many report.

ONE OF MANY

Luce county's annual hunting fool is reported to have arrived. He's from Detroit. He was found west of Newberry in the top of a tree by two local hunters. He was lost, had been for six hours he said, and had climbed the tree to get his bearings. The tree was in the bottom of a ravine and not tall enough to allow him to look out. And the hard work was totally unnecessary for he was within a few yards of a well travelled township road.

Many Nabbed In Luce County for Game Violations

Officials arrested two men on Friday when they were found hunting from the rear end of a truck and Ralph Lohr and Edward Roberts, both of Deer Park, will be charged with having loaded guns in a car. When the officials came upon them they pumped the shells but they were picked up from the floor of the truck. T. Tarzeni, caretaker for the E. V. Price hunting lodge was driving the truck. They will be tried in Newberry.

William F. Weeks, Raymond and Thomas Howard and Gordon Frost, all of Lowell, were arrested on Friday when conservation officials found venison untagged and hidden near their cabin. They pleaded not guilty in justice court and will have their trial on November 22. Attorney A. L. Sayles has been engaged to defend them.

Neil Dukat and Alex Revord picked up for hunting without licenses, resisted arrest. In justice court they pleaded guilty to the charge and are serving ten days each in the Newberry jail.

John Sands, a hunter from Flushing, pleaded guilty to having partridge in his possession and paid a fine of $10 and costs of $7.10 in Justice Kinzie's court on Friday.

John Zabelka of Sault Ste. Marie paid a fine of $10 and costs of $7.10 before Justice Moore of Trout Lake after pleading guilty to having a loaded gun in his car.

Leon Biglow of Stanton, Mich., was found guilty in justice court here of the charge of shooting a doe. He was given a suspended sentence of $50 and paid costs of $7.10 and was placed on probation for one year.

CAR WARNING

Officials are warning car owners of the ruling of the attorney general concerning the confiscation of automobiles. Otto Hood and Frank Lane, both of Manistique, who were found guilty some time ago of having does in their cars, lost the cars through condemnation proceedings. The fact that cars are not paid for or are mortgaged, or even belong to someone else, makes no difference providing the driver has a legal right to use the car or is doing so with the consent or knowledge of the owner.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

"The Charming Pretender" was given in the high school on Friday evening by members of the 1933 graduating class under the direction of Miss J. Lynn McClung, instructor in English. It was an excellent production, given with finish and showing ability and clever selection of cast.

The title part was taken by Taimi Niemi playing to Andrew Carmichael, a young American in the person of Ralph Fuller and this pair, starring, were splendidly supported by the other members of the company. Stephen Drexel the son, was done by Arthur Taylor with Helen Mae Smith as his sister, Eloise, and Patrick Gormely as the father, Buchannen Drexel, an American financier. Lord Marshall Kendell, alias "English Eddy" was done to a turn by Robert Villemure who had the accent and intonation well in hand and used his monacle with effect. Gladys Joe, a young model, was played by Irma Wirta, and Cavanaugh, the butler, by Ralph Newman.

The business staff was comprised of Ernest Meyers as manager with Niel Lyyski as assistant. Mervin Pike was property manager, Helen Mahar and Arvo Wirta had charge of advertising, Rena Hale had charge of the programs.

Between the acts music was furnished by Lillian Knutson at the piano and James Burns, drums. Arthur Neu sang two numbers, "Morning" by Speaks and "Hard Trails" by Burleigh. Mrs. Bystrom accompanied.

Two clever skits were given: "Nothing But Nonsense" by Elizabeth Quinlan and Marvin Pike and "Hard Boiled, Soft Boiled" by Lowell Sundstrom and Ernest Meyers.

St. Francis Hospital

The Escanaba fire department is ready again to play Santa Claus' helpers. Residents of the city who have outgrown or unused toys stored away in attics and closets are invited to bring them to the fire hall and they will be touched up with paint and glue as good as new to be presented to children in needy families whom St. Nicholas may forget at Christmas time.

The practice is one that has been followed for several years by the Escanaba fire department and this year the need for toys is probably greater than ever.

Wagons, sleds, dolls, skates, skiis and many more types of toys of the durable kind make acceptable gifts for any youngster. Brightened with paint, and with a screw, nail or glue applied here and there, the toys unused, outgrown and discarded by some more fortunate children may be the means of bringing a happy Christmas to the home that Santa Claus forgets.

The toys repaired by the firemen are distributed along with Christmas baskets to lists of children furnished by local welfare agencies. Last year a couple of truck loads were turned over for this purpose. Those unable to bring their contributions to the fire hall are asked to telephone and the playthings will be called for as soon as possible.

The firemen have their tools and paint ready, and are waiting for a chance to do their bit in their spare time. An early response to the appeal will be appreciated, so that the renovating is sure to be completed in time for Christmas.

Skaters Discover Good Ice On Bay

Skaters found fair ice Saturday on the shallows of the bay along Ludington park. Most of the area inside the sand bars was sheeted over, and in some spots the surface was smooth enough for good skating.

As soon as freezing weather is assured for a continuous period, the city plans to establish the usual several ice rinks in the city. Flooding will not be started, however, until the temperature is a little lower and day-time thaws disappear.

THEATRES

The season's tremendous enthusiasm for football has an ideal outlet in "The All American," the Universal gridiron drama which opens an engagement at the Delft Theatre today.

This is declared to be the greatest football picture in the history of the screen, and brings together more than 30 of the game's outstanding stars, as well as a big cast of popular screen players including Richard Arlen, Andy Devine, Gloria Stuart, James Gleason, Preston Foster, June Clyde and John Darrow. Last season's all-America team plays as a unit, and their opposition is made up of a score of gridiron heroes of previous years. "Red" Cagle, Ernie Nevers, Marchy Schwartz, Albie Booth, Frank Carideo and Jerry Dalrymple are among the stars who are seen in hard-fought contests on the football field.

The story of "The All American," which is an absorbing drama quite aside from its football interest, traces the career of Garry King, college gridiron star who is spoiled by the adultation of the multitude and who becomes much less of a man after he leaves school. He is brought to his senses when he realizes that his younger brother, who has succeeded him as the star football player of the university, is beginning the same sort of a career.

HAVE YOU HEARD—

HOW "Sunny" Smith spends his evenings?

Well, he spends a good part of them poring over his evening paper, chuckling to himself. Though he owns no stocks or bonds, he reads the market reports every day.

"Got the habit of watching other people's money go up and down," he says. "As for my money, it can't go down. Worth 100c on the dollar every time. Don't have to sell anything or borrow anything to get it either. All I have to do is to walk into the bank and say 'Here's my pass book. I want to draw out some money.' And quick as a wink I get it—when I want it.

"But the fact is—just because it's there and always ready for me is the one reason why I don't touch it."
